WIDOW OF DI COLA BARS SON

Antonio Bova, the West End barber, is barred from the Brookline home of his mother, Mrs. Gaspare Di Cola.

It was Bova who revealed, after the assassination of Di Cola last Wednesday night, the Di Cola family secret, the elopement of the rich importer and Antonio Bova's mother from Italy more than a quarter-century ago.

The son also declared he had repeatedly tried to have his mother and Di Cola married according to the church. The story told by the son revealed a long chain of family mystery which is not all cleared up yet.

WERE DENIED ADMISSION.

Bova and his wife went out to the Brookline house, where the body of the murdered "Leman King" now lies. They were denied admission.

Young Bova freely discussed the visit with his wife to the Brookline home and the refusal of his mother to allow him to enter her apartment.

He said, "Before starting for work I went to the Marchetti home on Doris street, Dorchester, and inquired for Mrs. Di Cola. I was told that she had gone to her Brookline home and I then visited an attorney for advice as to what I ought to do. He told me if I desired to see my mother to go to the Brookline house.

"I told him I was her son and wished to see my mother and he went to the apartment and returned with the answer that we could not be admitted.

"Then wishing to be of assistance to my mother if she needed me, my wife wrote a note giving our address and offer of aid. I do not believe I will attend the funeral unless I hear from her, as I do not want to go where I am not wanted."

The first shock of the assassination is being succeeded in the public mind by an ever-increasing amusement as the Di Cola history and its ramifications are slowly unfolded, following the first startling story told by Antonio Bova.

ESTATE WORTH $300,000.

Di Cola's estate is estimated at more than $300,000. It is said that the will which the dying man signed with

GERMANS FORCED BACK

By SIDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Sept. 23.—Continuing their advance south of the Ancre, the British troops captured a strongly fortified system of German trenches east of Courcellette, the War Office announced today. The British advanced on a front of half a mile.

West of Moquett Farm the Germans made terrific counter-attacks yesterday evening, but were driven back with heavy losses by the British. The War Office statement follows:

"South of the Ancre we made a further advance during the night to the east of Courcellette. A strongly fortified system of enemy trenches was captured. Our line advanced on a front of half a mile. We took some prisoners.

"West of Moquett Farm the enemy delivered a violent counter-attack late yesterday evening. He was driven back with heavy losses. There was considerable hostile artillery fire during the night on many parts of the front.

"East of Bethune an enemy ammunition dump was exploded by our artillery."

AUSTRIA TO SEND NEW ENVOY TO U. S.

By International News Service.

Vienna, Sept. 23.—A new ambassador to the United States to take the place of Dr. Dumba, who was recalled because of unneutral activities, will soon be named. Count Tirza, replying to a question said the ways and means to fill the vacancy would be found immediately.

"Austria-Hungary sets a great value on its relations with the United States," he said.

BRITISH RAIDS ON SALONICA FRONT

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 23.—Raiding of enemy trenches in the Struma and Doiran regions was reported by the British war office today in a statement on the Salonica operations. The text of the communication follows:

"On the Struma our patrols raided enemy trenches on Komarjan. The enemy suffered some casualties. Our naval air craft bombed a troop train at Drama, apparently successfully. In the Doiran zone we made three raids on enemy trenches."

SIX MORE KILLED BY PLAGUE IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 23.—Twenty-six new cases of infantile paralysis and six deaths were reported today. This is an increase of six and a decrease of five, respectively.

Fitz Would Drive Two Film Shows Out of Boston

That the two film shows, "Where Are My Children?" and "The Little Girl Next Door," should be driven out of Boston is the declaration made by former Mayor Fitzgerald in an editorial printed in the Republic.

He comments upon the film situation, including Mayor Curley's alleged efforts in behalf of "Where Are My Children?", as follows:

It is very unfortunate the Mayor should be mixed in the moving picture scandal. We hope that the lesson will not be lost upon him and that in the future he will not only keep aloof from such matters, but also from the association that bring his name in such a manner that people are board to form conclusions that may be unjust.

Perhaps the best way out of the matter would be to close up the two shows now running in Boston, "Where Are My Children?" and "The Little Girl Next Door." We are glad to notice that Pittsburg and other cities in New England have barred the performances, and if the developments of the last few days have no other result than to drive these shows out of New England the incident will not have been in vain.

$50,000 BALLOTS FOR THE PRIMARIES

About $50,000 ballots have been shipped out by the Secretary of State's office to the cities and towns of Massachusetts for the State primaries on Tuesday.

The ballots contain the names of 10,438 candidates. Of these 4,041 are Republicans, 4138 are Democrats and 261 are Prohibitionists.

Last year the number was 10,877 candidates, of whom 6149 were Republicans, 3933 Democrats and 692 Progressives.

PROTEST ADVANCES ON BAY STATE ROAD

The Selectmen of Dighton and a delegation of Winchester citizens filed protests with the Public Service Commission against the proposed fare increases on the Bay State Street Railway. Both groups asked for public hearings. The Dighton officials complained against the proposed abolition of the six-trip tickets in Fall River, which they declare "are a great convenience to the residents of this town."

AERIAL POST FROM BERLIN TO TURKEY

SOX START TICKET SALE

The Red Sox management announced today that applications for the World's Series games may now be made. President Joseph J. Lannin is sure that Carrigan's band will win the American League flag and he has wired the Red Sox club officials from Cleveland to start making preparations for the title contests.

If the Red Sox take part in the World's Series, they will play their Boston games at Braves Field as they did last year when they battled the Phillies. It will be possible to accommodate almost 35,000 "fans" at each of the games played in this city.

GAMES AT BRAVES FIELD.

In the sale of tickets, the Red Sox management intends to adopt the same system it employed last year. Application for tickets should be sent to the Boston American League Baseball Club, No. 24 Jersey street, Back Bay. No money or checks should be forwarded with the application for seats.

The Red Sox management announced that no person will be allowed more than four tickets for a single game. As usual, the tickets will be sold in three game blocks. If a third game is not necessary, ticket holders will receive a refund at the end of the World's Series.

It is the intention of the Red Sox management to care for the early applicants as far as it is possible to do so.

SERIES MAY START OCTOBER 7.

After the successful applicants for tickets have been decided upon they will be mailed cards informing them how many tickets they have been allowed and telling them to secure their tickets at the Red Sox office by the payment of the price of the tickets.

The World's Series is expected to open October 7, and it is planned to mail the ticket cards to the successful applicants on Monday, October 2.

Box seats will cost $5. Therefore tickets for the three games would be $15. Grandstand seats will be $3 a game, with seats in the first and third base bleachers selling at $2.

In all cases tickets will be sold only for three games. The $1 seats will be sold on the day of the games.

TROOPS MAY AID HUNT FOR COUPLE

A reward of $1,000 and a request for New Hampshire State troops to aid in the hunt were additional features today of the continued search in the woods of Dixville Notch, N. H., for former Assistant District Attorney and Mrs. Joseph A. Dennison of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennison have been lost in the deep woods since Wednesday, when they started for a walk from Dixville.

The $1,000 reward for anyone who finds the missing couple was offered today by Daniel H. Coakley, the prominent Boston attorney and brother of Mrs. Dennison.

Boston friends of the Dennisons feared today that solution of the mystery of the disappearance of the young attorney and his wife will reveal a tragedy. One theory is that they may have been slain.

The request for State troops was made by District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Boston, close friend of the Dennisons and Coakleys.

Early in the day Mr. Pelletier dispatched a telegram, addressed to either the sheriff or District Attorney at Colebrook, N. H., as follows:

"Will you kindly render all possible assistance in the search for Joseph A. Dennison and wife.

"JOSEPH C. PELLETIER,
"District Attorney."

CALLS FOR TROOPS.

Later Mr. Pelletier followed this up by a personal telephone call to Governor Rolland H. Spaulding of New Hampshire, asking that State troops be called out to help the increasing

PLAN U. S. INQUIRY ON MILK

That the State Department of Health was denied by the Legislature of any power to inspect local or out-of-State milk dairies in the interest of public health is the answer made by the Public Health Council to the demand of the Worcester County Milk Producers' Association for an investigation of the milk situation.

The Public Service Commission has issued an order suspending until November 1 the proposed changes by the Boston & Maine in the rates on shipments of milk within Massachusetts.

Worcester County milk producers are formulating a combine to bring their milk to Boston and sell it publicly to the highest bidders unless present conditions are immediately changed.

Those are the three important developments in the milk war. The fourth and most important will be an investigation of the entire milk situation in New England by the Federal Department of Justice.

McCALL IS BLAMED.

Meanwhile, the contractors are advancing their plans to boost the price of milk to the consumers.

That Governor McCall played a hand in the defeat of the McLaughlin "clean milk" bill, which sought to give the State Department of Health, the authority to inspect milk at its source, is the story being spread among the producers.

George Albree of Concord, who is acting in behalf of the Worcester County producers, was asked if he "had reason to believe that Governor McCall had a hand in the matter."

"I have," replied Mr. Albree.

"Why?" Mr. Albree was asked.

"From the word that was given me by members of the Legislature in whom I have absolute confidence," Mr. Albee replied.

The McLaughlin bill, which was drafted by State Health Commissioner Allan J. McLaughlin, was defeated by the last Legislature.

ASKS INVESTIGATION.

Acting under authority of the Worcester County Milk Producers' Association, Mr. Albree appealed to the State Department of Health to investigate the sources of supply of the Maine shipments of milk into Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts producers assert that the Maine milk is produced under lower standards than are required in the Bay State and that the railroad rates are so discriminatory that milk can be shipped cheaper to Boston from points in far-distant Maine than from Worcester County to Boston.

In its reply to Mr. Albree, the Public Health Council says, in part:

An attempt was made last year by this department to obtain a change in the existing laws so as to give this department the power and funds necessary to control the milk situation either through the authority of local boards of health or directly, in case the local boards of health refused or neglected to act.

LACKS AUTHORITY.

This the Legislature refused to pass and, therefore, it appears that the Legislature does not desire the State Health Department to undertake work of this character.

In the absence of necessary funds and in the absence of necessary authority to change existing conditions, this department feels it will be necessary to decline to make your investigation of dairy conditions in Maine and the conditions relative to the handling and treating of milk for sale in Massachusetts.

Mr. Albree, acting in behalf of the Worcester County Producers, also petitioned the Public Service Commission to suspend the Boston & Maine rate changes, which were scheduled to become effective tomorrow.

SUSPEND BOSTON & MAINE RATES

"The commission decided to suspend the rates at the request of Mr. Albree and other petitioners," said Public Service Commissioner Meaney, after the order of suspension was issued.

"The new rates, on the whole, would be lower than those now in force, but in some instances increases would be made. The protestants assert that the rates would be discriminatory. It seems most probable that public hearings will be granted the remonstrants before the rates are either approved or disapproved."

The Worcester County Producers have requested the Public Service Commission to determine whether the system of rates in vogue in Maine can be established in Massachusetts for benefit of the Bay State producers and the consuming public.

Their fundamental claim is that the operation of the system gives better rate for the milk without increasing the cost to the public.

PERMIT OVER 100 ALIENS TO LAND

Following an examination by immigration officials aboard the White Star liner Cretic at Commonwealth pier, South Boston, more than 100 of the detained aliens were set free. About 300 will be brought to the immigration station at Long wharf today, and the board of special inquiry will pass on their cases.

MRS. DI COLA BARS HER SON FROM BROOKLINE RESIDENCE

his "cross mark" in the hospital just before dawn Thursday morning cuts off with the Brookline house and $100 a month the woman who had been his helpmeet for more than twenty-five years.

The bulk of the property, it is said, goes to a younger brother, Giuseppe Di Cola, in Italy. The married daughter is said to have been remembered, too. The brother has cabled that he leaves on the first steamer to come here.

There is speculation now whether Mrs. Di Cola will contest such a will.

Antonio Bova says that no matter whether Mrs. Di Cola gets a large share of the property or not, he will take steps to establish his claim that he is the son of Mrs. Di Cola by her marriage to Mariano or Maurice Bova in Sicily about thirty years ago.

WATCH TWO MEN.

Two prominent Italians were kept under close surveillance today by the Boston and Brookline police. It was at first reported that Mrs. Di Cola had given the police the name of the assassin, but this was later denied.

The police have a theory that the assassin had no personal revenge to fulfill, but was merely a hired killer and that the real secret of the assassination lies back of the actual slayer.

The story of a blackmail letter demanding $25,000 is being investigated by the authorities and a story that members of an organized gang traveled to Boston from Hartford in an automobile, and after a demand for money was refused, waited until after the Tremont Temple meeting and reached the corner of Beacon and Fairbanks streets in the automobile in advance of the car in which the men made their escape in the auto, is being investigated.

The police are also anxious to establish the whereabouts of the deserted husband, Maurice Bova, father of Antonio, and a search is being made to ascertain if he is living or dead, or whether or not he is living in Italy or Baltimore.

STILL A MYSTERY.

Captain Matthew Dailey of the Hanover street station today denied the rumor that the husband was in Boston recently, or that he arrived on the Cretic, recently docked from Italy.

Antonio Bova says he has not heard from his father for several years and does not know whether he is living or dead.

He could not tell whether it was one or four years ago that he last wrote to his father in Italy, to which letter he never received an answer.

With the many rumors given the police without positive confirmation, the slaying of the "Lemon King" was as great a mystery as on the night when he was slain soon after slighting from a car.

Arrangements for the funeral services of Di Cola have been completed by the arrival of Manuel Di Cola, a nephew of the slain man, who came from his home in Chicago. Services will be held at his home Sunday afternoon and then the body will be taken to St. Leonard of Port Maurice Church, Prince street.

Permission to bury the body from the Catholic Church was secured yesterday by the Franciscan Fathers after it was reported that Di Cola received the rites of the church on his death bed from a curate of St. Joseph's Church, West End, and received communion.

SECURED A DIVORCE.

It has been learned that Mrs. Di Cola secured a divorce from Marianno Bova Conti in the Dedham Divorce Court, on December 23, last, and the decree became absolute last June.

Whether the couple were married since the decree became absolute has not been learned by the authorities and Mrs. Di Cola's condition has been such that she cannot aid the police.

Professional gunmen are also being sought as a possible clew to the crime and it is hinted that one of the two men under watch hired the murderer to commit the deed, as they were unfriendly and recent disputes caused a climax to their differences.

The body of the murdered man remains at the North Grove street morgue, but will be given to the undertaker of the family today and removed to the Brookline apartment.

Officers in charge of the case visited many personal friends of the "Lemon King" to ascertain what enemies existed, if any, and trips were made to Dorchester, Brookline and West End.

Sergeant Rutherford and Patrolman Ferrari visited the office of District Attorney Parker at Dedham, but Officer Ferrari denied that it was in connection with the Brookline murder.

TRIED TO HELP HIS MOTHER.

The Grand Jury will convene Monday, October 2, and if evidence sufficient to cause an arrest on suspicion is not secured, the entire case will be placed before the jury.

Boy Sealed in Car Is Lost on Railways of Central West

By International News Service.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Rolling around somewhere in the Middle West is a refrigerator car, locked and sealed, which is believed to contain an eight-year-old boy. He has been there since yesterday. Scores of railroad detectives and car tracers have been warned to be on the lookout for the car.

Mrs. Edward Ballou, who lives near the Pan Handle tracks, reported to the police that she saw two boys put another boy into the car, seal it and scamper off, leaving their companion a prisoner.

A few minutes after she was horrified to see the car being moved out of the yards. She lost sight of it before she could notify the yard officers.

Billy Sunday Is Called a Clown

Billy Sunday is called a clown by the Rev. Bradley Gilman, a Unitarian minister of Boston, who resents his attacks upon the Unitarians.

Dr. Gilman in the current issue of the Christian Register makes his attack upon the evangelist in these words:

"Billy Sunday is a clown development of modern life and as such he is worth seeing," declares this minister.

"He gives you the value of your money, which is not taken at the door but is asked in a collection. He should be classed sociologically among the vaudeville performers.

"He is the normal evolution of the funny fellow in the painted face, peaked hat, and voluminous trousers, whom we knew and enjoyed with the popcorn and peanuts of long ago."

ALDERMAN DWYER OF MEDFORD DEAD

Alderman Richard J. Dwyer of Medford is dead in his home on South street of pneumonia.

Mr. Dwyer was born in Medford, October 7, 1854. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1877, and from Harvard Law School in 1880. He had practiced law for the past twenty-five years.

BAY STATE GOES ASHORE; ALL ARE SAVED

Portland, Me., Sept. 23.—Though all the passengers had been taken off the steamer Bay State, which is ashore on McKenney's Point, Cape Elizabeth, and in danger of breaking out the captain's wife, who made the trip with him, was still on the ship with her husband today.

The master of the ship, Captain Levi Forham, with his crew, was still aboard today, though water coming through a hole in the ship's bottom had put out the fires and the ship was in imminent danger.

Mrs. Fordham refused to leave her husband on the ship, when rescuers sought to induce her to allow herself to be taken off.

SIX MILES OFF COURSE.

A possible explanation of the disaster was revealed today. It is now believed the Bay State was trying to pick up the Cape Elizabeth lightship, which was taken off three days ago for repairs, only a buoy being left in its place.

The Bay State was six miles out of the course when it struck.

When the Bay State struck, there were few of the 259 passengers awake. They were wakened by the officers, and some in a panic put on life belts.

The first rescue boats took off the passengers in small boats. One of these boats was almost swamped by the rolling of the ship. One man in a panic jumped down into a boat from the rescuing steamer Ossipee.

The Ossipee broke two six-inch hawsers trying to pull the Bay State off.

The shock broke the Bay State's wireless poles and delayed communication with the shore. The water coming through a hole in her bottom soon flooded her engine room and put out the fires, also.

TAKE OFF CARGO.

When the wind and sea began to rise—it was calm, though foggy, when she struck—most of her cargo was taken off.

Captain Forham, a master pilot, was given charge of the ship two weeks ago when the license of one of the company's captains was suspended for a technicality.

Captain Thin Strout, the regular master of the Bay State, was placed in charge of the Ransom B. Fuller.

The passengers on the Bay State were in many cases lumbermen on their way to a Winter's work in the Maine woods.

The Bay State went ashore shortly before four o'clock this morning.

One of the heaviest fogs of the Summer hung over the water, accounting for the disaster. The first signals of distress were received about 4 o'clock, when the ship began sending up rockets. These signals were seen by one of the life-savers from Two-Light life-saving station on the shore of Cape Elizabeth who was patrolling the beach.

Immediately all the lifeboats of the station were manned and the crews rushed to the scene of the disaster.

HITS ROCKS WITH CRASH.

Louis Briggs, the look-out of the United states Coast Guard station, says that he saw the lights of the steamer dimly through the thick fog, and ran along the shore waving a flaming torch. Evidently the steamer did not see the signal of the look-out, for it was only a moment later when the big boat struck the jagged rocks with a crash.

Briggs ran to the station, and shortly afterward with Captain Sumner Dyer of the station and four other men launched the first boat and went to the aid of the stranded steamer. Four of the men went aboard, and two remained in the boat of the life guard ready to shoot a life line, if there seemed to be any danger.

The wildest alarm prevailed on the steamer when the crash came. The passengers rushed to the deck and were assured that ther was no immediate danger. They returned to their staterooms to dress and pack their ever valuables they had with them.

Angel's Rock, where the Bay State struck, is about 100 yards off the shore of Cape Elizabeth, which is five miles from Portland. It is a great jagged rock, partially submerged, and is one of the greatest danger points on the shore of the cape. The rock is a half a mile from the Two Light Life-Saving station, situated on the shores of the cape.

Aid Sent to 2 Ships In Distress off Coast

In the dense blanket of fog which early today enveloped the entire Massachusetts coast, two vessels were reported as being in distress and requiring assistance.

A message was received at the Navy Yard from the Coast Guard at Gloucester saying that an unidentified vessel was situated south of Thatcher's island, off Gloucester, sounding distress signals. Attempts to get into communication by wireless with the vessel failed, and it was supposed that she had no wireless on board.

The torpedo boat destroyer Henley and the Coast Guard cutter Androscoggin steamed out of the harbor shortly before 4 o'clock to the assistance of the vessel.

Police headquarters at New Bedford were called upon by phone from Quisset with a message that a vessel was in distress in the bay between Quissett and Cuttyhunk and was sending up rockets. The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet put out from New Bedford to aid the vessel.

HOLD SEAMAN FOR ATTACK AND THEFT

Earl Boudeaux, a seaman on the U.S.S. Kearsarge, was arraigned in the Charlestown Court before Judge Sullivan, charged with assault on Robert Hanna, also a seaman on the Kearsarge, and the robbery of $20. Boudeaux was held in $800. Hanna testified that he hired a room in a Charlestown hotel and invited Boudeaux to share his quarters. There, he claims he was assaulted and robbed. Boudeaux said he took the money because he thought Hanna was in no condition to care for it.

Governor McCall also telephoned Governor Spaulding, asking him to extend all possible assistance in the search for the Dennisons.

Mr. Coakley, Daniel Sugrue of his office, Charles D. Driscoll, Dennison's law partner, and former Alderman James H. Doyle hurried to New Hampshire today, realizing the seriousness of the situation.

Mr. Coakley motored up from his Summer place on Bussard's Bay and continued up to New Hampshire. At Bussard's Bay Mrs. Coakley said:

ANXIOUSLY AWAIT NEWS.

"The only information we received today was a telegram from Mr. Dennison's secretary saying there was nothing new and that the men were still searching for Mr. and Mrs. Dennison in the woods.

"My husband left here this morning in his automobile for New Hampshire and we are anxiously waiting to hear from him.

DENNISON IN POOR HEALTH.

"We feel that Mr. Dennison, whose health was poor, has met with a mishap or been overcome by fatigue and that Mrs. Dennison is perhaps struggling to bring him out of the woods."

Mrs. Coakley then inquired if there were berries or anything at this time of the year on which the Dennisons might subsist until found. When assured there were berried in the woods, she said she was glad.

Dennison and his wife were staying at the Balsams Hotel. Coakley was notified last night by the hotel authorities that his sister and Mr. Dennison had been missing since Wednesday.

The mountain region in which the couple are supposed to have become lost is one of the wildest in this section of the State. The numerous tales of accident are so numerous that few venture into the woods without a competent guide. None of the territory in the near vicinity of the hotel has never been explored.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennison, who live at No. 499 Audubon Road, Boston, arrived at the hotel five weeks ago. They have been great favorites with the guests at the hotel.

Last Wednesday they informed several acquaintances that they intended to take a stroll in the woods. A few minutes later they were seen leaving dressed in walking costumes.

When they failed to return for dinner the manager of the hotel became alarmed. He sent several boys out in an attempt to locate them.

150 JOIN IN SEARCH.

A few hours later the manager of the hotel entered the room the couple occupied and found that they had changed their clothes on the bed ready to put on for dinner.

Wednesday night three guides searched a portion of the district in an attempt to find the couple. In the morning the guides reported that they had been unable to find any trace of Mr. and Mrs. Dennison.

Guests of the hotel then organized a searching party and they remained in the woods all day. At night the guides again went out, this time bearing torches.

The police were called in yesterday and during the day over 150 townsfolk and guests of the hotel tramped unsuccessfully through the woods.

As it grew dark the leaders of the several posses decided to remain out all night. Hundreds of torches were made and the different parties started out shortly before 8 o'clock.

The fact that the couple had no food with them is causing much alarm. It is feared that they may starve to death in the dense woods.

Another very disturbing to the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dennison is that there is little or nothing growing on the mountain upon which they might subsist until aid reaches them.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS.

Mr. Dennison was a Charlestown boy and began work as a reporter on a Boston newspaper. His first entry into political life was as a strong supporter of John F. Fitzgerald in his campaign against the then Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil.

Soon after this Mr. Dennison took up the study of law. After attending Dartmouth and Harvard colleges, and finishing the regular course at the Boston University Law School, he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar and entered upon practice that is now large and successful.

In the three-cornered Conry-Dennison-Keliher campaign for the first time with his free silver platform, Mr. Dennison was one of the most active Bryan men in Boston.

When the late John B. Moran defeated Miles Standish Peters for District Attorney in November, 1905, one of the first official acts was to appoint Dennison his first assistant.

DEFEATED BY MORAN.

Later in the year Dennison resigned and ran for the Democratic nomination for the office of District Attorney, defeating Moran. Walter A. Washer was nominated by the Republicans. After a campaign that turned deep into Boston politics, Moran won, getting more votes than Dennison and Wetherbee combined.

Dennison continued building up his law practice and keeping in close touch with politics, although not active until two years ago, when he came out as a vigorous supporter of Thomas J. Kenny against James M. Curley for Mayor.

Dennison married Miss Louise Coakley, sister of Daniel H. and the late Timothy W. Coakley.

TAMMANY IN NEW WILSON DEAL

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—A story is being circulated here that Tammany Hall has made a dicker with the Wilson campaign managers for the mayoralty of New York in 1917. In return for support of Wilson it is said Tammany will benefit as follows:

1—President Wilson will keep his hands off the coming mayoralty contest and will not support a fusion candidate even of the Mitchel stamp.

2—In the event that President Wilson is re-elected, Tammany will have recognition in Washington and Tammany henchmen will share in the political appointments.

3—Neither Secretary McAdoo nor any other Wilson agent will interfere with the Tammany program to name Robert F. Wagner for Mayor, and Alfred E. Smith for president of the borough of Manhattan.

4—All Wilson men will be urged to support Tammany in the mayoralty campaign in 1917.

After a conference National Chairman McCormick said: "The situation is fine. It could not be better. Mr. Murphy is working as hard for Wilson as I am."

On every hand it is agreed that if the coalition of Tammany and the Wilson machine is carried through it will mean the downfall of Mayor Mitchel and the election of a Tammany Mayor, Board of Aldermen and Board of Estimate next year.

TO PROTEST IN CASE OF ALLISON

Three physicians are to address a mass meeting to be held at 8 o'clock Sunday evening at the Majestic Theatre, to protest against the three years' sentence imposed on Van Kleeck Allison for distributing birth control information.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Frederick A. Blossom of Cleveland, president of the Ohio Birth Control League, who has come to aid in the campaign in Allison's behalf. Dr. Blossom's topic will be "Birth Control and the Fight Against Poverty."

31 MORE PLAGUE CASES

Thirty-one new cases of infantile paralysis were reported by the State Health Department today. Eight of the cases are in Boston. The first case at Nantucket was reported.

The total number of cases for the month is 455, as compared with 330 for the rest of the year up to September 1.

The eight new cases in Boston make 120 for the month. Four new cases were discovered in Newburyport, making a total of seventeen in that city for the month.

The State Department reported today:

Amesbury—John Bartogil, No. 24½ Aubin street; Esko Aarino, No. 2 Poplar street.

Newburyport—Dean F. Bumpus, No. 41 Milk street; Margaret Lyons, No. 43 Olive street; Stanlyis Krasowaha, No. 17 Independent street; James Plouff, No. 55 Washington street.

Nantucket — Theodore Rippler, Pearl street.

Westford—J. Desmond, South Westford.

Dedham—Child of Potuca Pugluca, No. 30 Winthrop street; Walter R. McCarthy, No. 52 Milton street.

The disease continues to hold away in the western part of the State. Holyoke, in proportion to its population, has more cases than any other place in the State. One new case is reported there today making forty-two for the month.

Springfield reported three new cases, making twenty-eight for the month, one case was discovered also in Pittsfield, which brings the total in that city for the month up to twenty-seven.

Another Plague Case in Manchester, N. H.

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 23.—Another case of infantile paralysis, making three in one family, was discovered here today, when it was announced that Agnes Griffin, two, of No. 66 Cedar street, was suffering from the disease. An older sister, Mary, who was four, died a few days ago, and the mother, Mrs. Mary Griffin, is also stricken with the disease.

BRIDE HOPES TO WED TYSON IF SHE IS FREED

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—All the elements of a sentimental drawing-room comedy exist in the Tyson-Exiner-Dass triangle over which tongues are wagging in society along the Sound from Port Chester to Stamford.

The cause of the lovers' quarrel between John H. Tyson, whose miscellaneous activities as a speeding motorist have attached the epithet "Hoodoo" to his name, and Mrs. Clive J. Bass, was that she had secretly changed her maiden name.

Her maiden name was Hawley. She was supposed to be engaged to Tyson when she married his youthful rival, Alexander H. Bass, college boy, son of a rich sugar magnate, William L. Bass. Now she expects to marry Tyson when she is divorced.

It was the discovery of this marriage that piqued Tyson to such an extent that he married Miss Rose Exiner on September 11. He told how he had discovered his mistake, and candidly informed his bride that he could never love her. He said his heart was irrevocably in the keeping of Mrs. Olive Bass.

Meanwhile, nobody outside young Bass's family knows what had become of him. It is understood that under stern parental advice he had been shipped away to repent at leisure for having married in haste.

One of the features of the situation is the frankness with which Mr. Tyson and Mrs. Bass discloses their sentiments to a breathless world.

"I don't care to say what it was I did that made Mr. Tyson angry. It was just some little foolish thing that people would not care to understand. But I will say that his anger at me was not because of any attention I had been receiving from another man. There was no other man after Mr. Tyson and I had reached an understanding that we were to be married when I obtained my divorce. My marriage to Mr. Bass was little more than a prank. We never lived together and there was never any real love between us. I expect no difficulty in obtaining a divorce from him.

"Mr. Tyson's marriage to Miss Exiner has complicated the negotiations and I do not know what will be the outcome of it all. But I guess things will come out all right in the end and I expect that Mr. Tyson and myself will soon be able to carry out the plans that were interrupted by his marriage to Miss Exiner."

HARVARD CRIMSON BOOSTS ITS PRICE

Another item was added to Harvard's increased tariff schedule when the Harvard Crimson, one of the famous college journals of the country, announced that it could not compete with the high price of white paper, and had consequently hoisted the subscription price a dollar, making the cost to each subscriber $4 for the college year instead of $3.

BRIDE HOPES TO WED TYSON IF SHE IS FREED

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—Summer breezes turning into cold rainy weather and dampening the ground makes it impossible these days for girls to dance in the woods and open air. Consequently the leading exponents of the rhythmic expression of Greek dancing have developed a new practice and are enjoying their art on the roofs of skyscrapers overlooking Central Park.

Miss Helen C. Moller, recognized as one of the leaders in Greek dancing, is one of the artists who has established such a studio. It is so arranged as to be protected from the winds. Daily on the roof of the Majestic, where Miss Moller has the studio, may be seen a group of bright faced children, clad in loose flowing robes, and barefooted, learning to express rhythmically the beauties of freedom of mind and body instilled through the "free as nature" idea.

EDDYSTONE PLANT BOUGHT BY ALLIES

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—The stock of the Eddystone Ammunition Corporation has been acquired by the Anglo-Russian commission, and in the future all munitions made at the plant will be manufactured under the supervision of representative of the allied governments. This was announced today by Albert H. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

It was said on good authority that high officials of the French and Russian governments would be included in the directors of the corporation and Russian and English bankers of high standing are backing the Anglo-Russia commission.

The Eddystone Ammunition Company was organized about fifteen months ago for the purpose of manufacturing shells for the Russian government. Large buildings were erected at Eddystone, Pa., and equipment given to more than 5,000 men. Several million dollars were invested in the interprise.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY IN CASE OF B. & M.

The Boston & Maine Minority Stockholders' Protective Association, through its president, Edward P. Brown of Ipswich, and Dr. Charles M. Green of Boston have undertaken proceedings in the United States Circuit Court to secure the dissolution of the recent order of the District Court by Judge Putnam for a temporary receivership for the Boston & Maine.

Conrad W. Crocker, attorney for the association, filed a bill of complaint before Judge Bingham in the United States Circuit Court at Littleton, N. H., alleging collusion and conspiracy between the petitioner for the receivership and the Boston & Maine directors.

WILSON LEAGUE OUT FOR JOINT DEBATE

The Woodrow Wilson Independent League of Massachusetts, through its president, Charles R. Jones, has invited the Hughes Alliance of Massachusetts to engage in a series of joint debates. It is planned to have nine debates, four in Boston, and one each in Springfield, Worcester, Fall River, Lawrence and Gloucester. If the idea prevails, the debates will be held during the month of October.

YALE FOOTBALL STAR DIVORCED BY HEIRESS

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Helen Whittier Hobbs, daughter of ex-Mayor John E. Andrus of Yonkers, who once was referred to as the "wealthiest man in Congress," and Bayne Homer Hobbs, former Yale all-American football star, with whom she eloped in 1911 when he was floor walker in a Springfield, Mass., department store, have been divorced at Reno.

Mr. Andrus confirmed this information. He said the divorce obtained by Mrs. Hobbs was not contested. The former Representative also stated he and his daughter have been reconciled, but that he had not heard whether she will return to live with him at Yonkers.

Before he graduated in 1910 Hobbs was a star tackle on the Yale team, of which his cousin, Handin Andrus, also was a member. Young Andrus introduced Hobbs to his sister. It was reported that Representative Andrus later ordered the big athlete to stop his attentions to Miss Andrus.

The young woman had servants secretly pack her trunk the night of June 7, 1911. An expressman took the trunk away at 11 o'clock at night without the knowledge of her family. Miss Andrus left her home early the next morning, saying she was going to New York. She was married to Hobbs that day. Mr. Andrus withheld his forgiveness.

The ex-Mayor, who lost one son by drowning and another in an explosion, is known not only for his wealth but as a large giver to the poor and to charitable and religious organizations. His fortune has been estimated at about $40,000,000.

"This is quite an age we are living in, when people want to read about things like this," he said. "There are the war and the big strike. A paper could be filled with them.

"I've been six weeks or two months since the divorce was granted."

Starting to defend his daughter as not being responsible for the domestic infelicity, Mr. Andrus checked himself.

"I do not want to say anything against the young man, Hobbs," he said. "Give him a chance to make good. I hope he does."

A photographic reproduction of Yale coaches in the current Yale alumni weekly, shows Mr. Hobbs in a group which includes Walter Camp and Alonzo Stagg. An effort to communicate with his attorneys was unsuccessful.

Mr. Hobbs is twenty-nine years old; Mrs. Hobbs is twenty-seven.

TRY TO KILL UNION LEADER WITH BOMB

Chicago, Sept. 23.—For a second time within a month, an attempt was made today on the life of Richard J. Shields, financial secretary of the Electrical Workers' Union. A bomb was placed on the rear porch of his home in Irving Park.

The explosion shattered windows in the building and threw him and his wife from their beds. Neither was injured.

A few weeks ago Shields was shot as he drove through the park with his wife. Labor enemies, he said, were responsible.

SEND NEW TROOPS TO GUARD BORDER

Washington, Sept. 23.—The War Department has ordered the following regiments to Mexican border.

Wyoming National Guard, comprising two infantry divisions; Troop A of the Kansas National Guard and Troop B of the National Guard. Approximately 10,000 National Guardsmen are still to be sent to the border under the plan of the department to give all the mobilized militia service on the frontier.

HUB'S DEATH RATE SHOWS A DECREASE

There is a decrease in the number of deaths in Boston for the week ending September 16 over the corresponding week of last year. There were fifty deaths under one year as compared with fifty-seven last year and fifty-six deaths over sixty years of age against sixty-four last year. In all there were reported 216 deaths against 224 of the corresponding week of last year.

SCOTT ACCEPTS BELL'S REPORT ON VILLA

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 23.—In direct contradiction to Secretary of War Baker's statement that he did not accept General Bell's report of the Chihuahua battle as reliable, Major-General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, today authorized this statement: "I believe Villa is alive and active. Furthermore, I accept Brigadier-General Bell's report as being a complete outline of the facts."

Brownsville, Texas, reported today that confirmation that Villa attacked Chihuahua City on September 16 and that a desperate battle was waged in the capital itself arrived there through Colonel Pedro Chapa, a Carranzista officer. Chapa said that Villa with 1,700 men disguised as farmers and gallemen entered the city while all the officers of the garrison were at a siesta, following an afternoon of patriotic exercises.

ASLEEP OR CELEBRATING.

Their men were either asleep or celebrating, and even the guards and sentries had been withdrawn from the outskirts of the city that they might participate in the festivities. Under these conditions, Capa, declared, Villa had little difficulty in entering the city and making a surprise attack.

The Villistas were beaten off, according to the officer, with a loss of 400 killed, 200 wounded and 200 prisoners. Chapa would give no estimate of the Carranzista losses, but admitted they were large.

As a result of the bungle at Chihuahua, Chapa said, it was impossible that General Trevino would lose his post and General Nafarette would succeed him.

SURPRISE COMPLETE.

Villa's surprise and strategy were complete, according to Chapa. He said the Villistas entered the city from various directions and small groups. They apparently were unarmed.

He declared they must have had assistance from the outside, because they seized their arms and attacked at a given time.

After they were beaten off the remnants of the bandits retreated to the foothills west of the city. They were pursued by Carranzista cavalry, according to the officer.

Villa Raids Hold Up Conference

By STUART GODWIN,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New London, Ct., Sept. 23.—In spite of the repeated claims of Villa that Villa's activities in Chihuahua are of no importance, the American commissioners took the reports of Villa's movements so seriously that even unofficial conferences were suspended today.

Until Major-General Tasker H. Bliss returns on Monday and can interpret the exact changes in the military situation there, nothing will be handled in movements, nothing will be attempted here in the way of further discussion. This was admitted today by a member of the American commission that the recognition by the Carranza government, applies only to railroads and a limited territory on each side of the line in many sections.

The American claim that the de facto faction troops in the Northern States are entirely capable of coping with the bandit question and are able to guarantee protection of the border, is not taken with the faith formerly accorded by the American conferees.

Reports of preliminary negotiations with the American bankers in London and New York looking to a large loan to the de facto government have been received here today in connection with the visit to Boston of Senors Pani and Bonillas and by the visit to New York of Senor Cabrera. Members of the Mexican commissioners would admit that finances had anything to do with their trips.

"Personal business" was the explanation given for the visit three, when asked about the visits.

In their absence and that of John H. Mott of the American commission, the other Americans with their families explored Long Island Sound on the Sylph.

FINLEY SHEPARD'S MOTHER IS DEAD

By International News Service.

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 23.—Mrs. Peter L. Shepard, mother of Finley J. Shepard and of her-in-law of Helen Gould, New York heiress, died at the New Haven Hospital early this morning at the age of eighty-six years. She had been at the hospital for nine days.

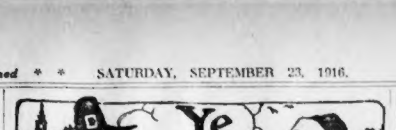
During the nine years of her stay with her daughters, Mrs. Shepard has gradually failed in strength, and although afflicted with blindness she was always cheerful and apparently contented. Called to the bedside of her mother, her daughter, Mrs. Wright of Worcester, was the only relative who was able to reach this city before the aged woman breathed her last. Mr. Shepard was unable to reach here.

Mrs. Shepard formerly lived in Guilford, Ct., where Finley J. Shepard was born, but following the death of her husband she was removed to the hospital here. Mrs. Helen Gould has often paid many visits to the aged woman.

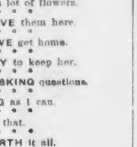
CAPT. HOLDSWORTH KILLED IN WAR

Word has reached Salem that Captain Thomas W. Holdsworth was killed September 14 while fighting with the Forty-fifth Overseas Battalion in an engagement on the Somme.

While in Salem Captain Holdsworth belonged to the old second Corps Cadets. He was in business there. He left Salem several years ago and since then has been living in Canada. He enlisted in Winnipeg and was sent to England as an instructor of musketeers. Captain Holdsworth was born in Digby in 1886.



I'VE TRIED for an hour
TO THINK of something
TO WRITE about
BUT I can't.
AND ALL I can see
FROM MY window
IS A girl on the roof
OF THE next building
WASHING A boa.
AND THERE'S nothing funny
OR INTERESTING
ABOUT THAT,
EXCEPT THAT just now
AS I write,
SHE WAVED it
TO SHAKE the white stuff out,
AND THE tall came off,
AND SHE nearly lost it.
IT SEEMS foolish
TO BE running around a roof,
WAVING A boa.
BUT I should worry
ABOUT HER,
WHEN I'VE so many troubles,
OF MY own,
TONIGHT,
AS I write,
I'M GOING north
TO TORONTO,
AND MEET my wife
AND BRING her home
AND FOR a month,
IN EVERY letter,
SH'D TELL me something
I HAD to do,
AND TODAY,
I'VE TRIED to remember,
ONE THING,
THAT SHE told me to do.
THAT I'VE done,
AND I can't.
EXCEPT I took
A LOT of gloves,
AND THINGS,
TO A cleaners,
TO HAVE them all ready
WHEN SHE got home,
AND I'VE lost the check
AND I'VE forgotten,
JUST WHERE the place is,
THAT I took them,
AND I promised,
I'D LOOK for a flat,
AND GET the furniture
FROM THE freight sheds,
AND I haven't,
AND I haven't sent the checks,
FOR THE payments
ON OUR books,
AND I'VE spent the money,
AND THERE'S only a few things,
I CAN He about,
AND ALL I can do,
IS GET a lot of flowers,
AND HAVE them here,
WHEN WE get home,
AND TRY to keep her,
FROM ASKING questions,
AS LONG as I can,
BUT AT that,
IT'S WORTH it all,
TO HAVE her home.



I THANK you.

GERMANS TAKE PASS FROM RUSSIANS

By International News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Humanian attacks, both in the Dobrudja and Transylvania sectors, were repulsed by the Teutonic allies, the German War Office announced today. In Macedonia the allied forces have evacuated territory. In the Eastern theatre of operations the Germans again took possession of Vulcan Pass, but admitted that they retreated some distance from the captured positions.

Both British and French attacks in the Somme region were repulsed.

The text of the official statement follows:

"Western front—Army of Prince Rupprecht—North of the Somme the battle was resumed. The French attacked the Combles Rancourt line without success. The British did not attempt any advance near Courcelette.

"On the night of September 21, English attacks on Moquet farm and Courcelette were repulsed.

"North of the Somme we shot down eleven enemy aeroplanes.

"Eastern theatre—Near Korytnica, Russian attacks failed.

"Army of Archduke Karl—There is no change north of the Carpathians. In the Carpathians fighting is slackening. Enemy attacks were unsuccessful in the Eilenburgern sector, on both sides of the Hermannstadt. two Rumanian divisions attacked our positions. They were repulsed with heavy losses. Within the course of twelve attacks we made three officers and 528 men prisoners. Near Rit Janoulday our advance posts were withdrawn during the night. We have taken Vulcan Pass.

"Army of Field Marshal von Mackensen—In the Dobrudja sector Rumanian attacks near the Danube southwest of Toprosari were repulsed.

"In Macedonia the enemy made futile attacks. The territory south of the Belasechitza plateau as far as the Krusha Balkan was evacuated by the enemy."

GREEKS MARCH TO FIGHT FOR ALLIES

By International News Service.

Salonica, Sept. 23.—Amid scenes of great enthusiasm a large force of Greeks and Italians departed for the front today to join the allies. They were wildly cheered by large crowds that gathered along the streets to watch them march away. The war spirit is flaming high here now as a result of the demonstration.

TWO WOUNDED IN CHELSEA RIOTING

By International News Service.

Two strikers were seriously wounded in a clash between strikers and strike-breakers at the factory of the A. G. Walton Company in Heard street, Chelsea, today, when a group of strike-breakers charged the crowd of strikers that besieged the factory at noon.

John Parfomit No. 7 Vale street, Chelsea, was shot in the leg. John Kolibski, No. 148 Chestnut street, Chelsea, was stabbed in the right side and in the shoulder. Both men were dragged from the middle of the scrimmage by friends, and taken in a near-by grocery store. They both nearly bled to death before the arrival of the police ambulance, in which they were taken to the Front Hospital.

Five of the assaulting strikers were arrested during the fight and rushed through the threatening crowd by policemen.

1,600 EMPLOYES OUT.

Nearly 1,600 operatives have been on strike at the factory for several weeks. Recently the strikers have been picketing the factory at closing time, making it necessary for the strike-breakers to leave in auto trucks, guarded by police.

At noon more than a thousand strikers and sympathizers surrounded the factory, practically besieging it, and making it impossible for the strike-breakers to get out.

POLICE DECEIVED.

By staging a pretended fight at some distance from the entrance of the factory the strikers lured most of the police on guard away from the entrance.

About fifteen strike-breakers, also fooled by the rush of the police, attempted a sortie. Before the police had returned on the run to the entrances, the fifteen strike-breakers were overwhelmed, and driven back into the building.

It was in this melee that Parfomi and Kolibski were injured, their friends claim, by strike-breakers.

Reinforcements of police were hurried from the police station in the shoe factory auto trucks, finally lifting the siege of the factory.

UNIONS MAY NOT JOIN STRIKE IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—Indications this afternoon were that the general strike called for next Wednesday morning will never take place, or that if it does fewer than half of the 100,000 organized workers in greater New York will heed the call.

Grave doubt exists as to whether 200,000 would take part in the suspension of work, which was called to aid the striking carmen with their demands for recognition.

The longshoremen's union, one of the biggest organizations, may not be called out. T. V. O'Connor, president, refused point blank today to say whether he would call his workers out. The union has contracts with all of the large shipping companies which do not expire before 1918.

Belief gained ground that the members of the Big Six Typographical Union would remain at work. They are all under long-term contracts with their employers.

DIDN'T GO TO MEETING.

No official of the Typographical Union was present at the meeting yesterday when the general strike was called. A great deal of dissatisfaction was manifested today over this. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers, another of the city's largest labor organizations, also was tardy in its resented yesterday, as was the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. The striking workers will stand aloof, said Joseph Schlossberg, their secretary, today, and that it was unlikely that they would go out.

Labor leaders were in conference all day at the Continental Hotel discussing plans for carrying out the strike. They refused to issue any statement regarding the reported defections of several of the large organizations.

Belief that a way would be found either to call off or postpone the general strike grew today, it was learned that the State Board of Mediation and Conciliation would start an inquiry into the carmen's strike next Wednesday.

It was pointed out this afternoon by union leaders opposed to the general strike that, in view of this inquiry, sympathy would be more strongly against the general strike being launched on Wednesday.

ATTACKED BY SHOUTS.

President Samuel Gompers of the Interborough issued a statement this afternoon bitterly attacking the labor leaders for calling the general strike. He charged that the company is not capital, in its palmiest days, has never approached the tyranny of labor under capital.

The entire weight of organized labor's influence will be thrown against behind the Interborough, Samuel Gompers said that the entire moral and financial support of the Federation would be given up for the strikers.

The special session of the New York Legislature loomed as a strong possibility today.

Great pressure will be brought to bear upon Governor Whitman to call the Legislature at once into session to investigate the causes of and curtailing the powers of the Public Service Commission.

It has been proposed that the commission be empowered to compel the traction companies to grant the carmen's demands, or to compel the traction companies to settle their differences by arbitration.

800 MORE POLICE.

Nine hundred special police will be added to New York's force at once to deal with the situation. Orders were sent out today by Police Commissioner Woods to all captains in the city to swear in ten men in each precinct in the city. This will be done at once.

All women workers will walk out with the men, unless Mrs. Raymond Hinchey, of the Women's Trade Union League. She declared that "understanding and sympathy" is lacking from work Wednesday.

"Every effort has been made that the militia will be called out" she said today. "They can go as far as they like. They will not be used as the girls are filled."

There was little disorder reported by the police today in connection with the carmens strike as compared with the first day of the strike. Only a few elevated trains were stoned and no one was injured.

UNITED STATES TO BUILD ZEPPELINS

Washington, Sept. 23.—Plans are being perfected by the Navy Department for the construction of a Zeppelin, of a huge rigid dirigible of the 20-called Lebaudy type for sale by the United States navy. The specifications will call for a dirigible approximately 500 feet long and of about 1,000,000.

The decision to build a Zeppelin is a result of the naval battle in the Sound between the German and British high sea fleets, during which German Zeppelins scouted for the German fleet in performing scouting duty.

N. H. MAN WOULD BE 'STAIT SENITOAR'

Concord, N. H., Sept. 23.—In accordance with the provisions of the direct primary law, candidates filed the week with Secretary of State Edwin C. Bean sworn statements of their receipts and expenditures in connection with the political campaign.

Among those who cast their vote getter than speller submitted his itemized statement with a letter to Secretary Bean asking that he classify as a candidate for "stait senitoar."

BETTING CONTINUES 2 TO 1 ON HUGHES

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 23.—Few bets on the outcome of the election were reported in the financial district, though those placed are mainly for $100 and $500. The odds continue at 2 to 1 in favor of Hughes, with the Wilson backers seeking even better terms wherever they believe there is a chance of getting them. Edward McQuade and E. I. Stokes each reported they have $10,000 to bet on Hughes at 3 to 1.

EXPECT FALL OF NEW CABINET IN GREECE

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 23.—Utterly ignored by the entente ministers and bitterly fought by large sections of the Greek press and public, the Kalogeropoulos Cabinet is about to pass into history.

Events in the Greek capital are painstakingly screened by the allied censorship, which since Wednesday is in complete charge of the dissemination of news. What little information manages to "trickle through," however, points to the early return to power of ex-Premier Venizelos, which inevitably means Greek intervention on the side of the allies.

An Athens dispatch says a "reconstruction" of the present Cabinet and the ejection of the pro-German members of it are planned "in order to gain the recognition of the entente." Those in close touch with the Greek situation predict that King Constantine will shortly have no alternative left except the appointment of Venizelos, the only man with whom the allied diplomats are willing to deal.

Great Air Battles On Somme Front.

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Sept. 23.—Four German airmen have been shot down in a mammoth air duel between the opposing forces on the Somme front. The official report today declared that fifty-six air battles have been staged in the last twenty-four hours.

A French dirigible bombarded Marcelcave, a French town occupied by the Germans since the early days of the war. North of the Somme the night was calm, and south the artillery activity continues.

The official communique follows:

"North of the Somme the night was relatively calm. Our patrol pushed on to Lisieres south of the village of Combles, and found many enemy dead. They also captured fifteen prisoners, one of them an officer.

"South of the Somme there is a lively artillery combat on all of the sectors there has been an intermittent cannonade.

66 COMBATS IN AIR.

"Aviation—On the Somme front our aviators, during the day of September 22, engaged in 66 air combats in which four enemy machines were brought down. Four others were seen disabled, but we were not able to follow their fall. Two of them were finally obliged to come down.

"During combats Adjutant Dorme brought down his 11th aeroplane at Goyancourt. Lieutenant Daulin brought down his seventh machine. South of Doingt, Adjutant Trancon brought down his sixth. Sonltest Morgeny, a fourth German aviator signalled and then fell.

"Southwest of Rodumont, in the region of Verdun, Adjutant Lenoir had a combat with a German aviator and forced him to come down in the region north of Douaumont. It was the 10th aeroplane brought down by this pilot.

"The bombardment has been very active on the whole Belgian front. Our aviators have thrown four bombs on the barracks in the forest of Houthulst. In the Somme region sixteen of our aviators bombarded the railroad stations at Fins Roisel and the aviation ground at Hervilly. They dropped eight shells of large calibre.

SHELL AUTO DEPOT.

"Northeast of Soissons an enemy automobile depot was bombarded with twenty shells. Adjutant Baron, accompanied by a bomb-thrower, last evening at about 7.30 arrived at Ludwigshafen (Palatinat).

"They threw three bombs on the military establishments, and continuing their route, they threw three more bombs on a very important factory at Manheim on the right bank of the Rhine, setting the place on fire and causing many explosions. Our aviators returned at 10.50.

"During the night of September 22-23, one of our dirigibles bombarded the railroad station at Marcoing, southwest of Cambrai."

VICTIMS OF WAR IN NO MAN'S LAND

Remains of soldiers gathered for burial after the French advance on the Aisne. The men fell during the fighting in "No man's land," and so constant was the fighting that they could not be buried. After the French had pushed forward the victims of war, many Germans being among them, were buried together in a long trench.

Russia to Be Beaten First, Is the Cry

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 23.—"Will Hindenburg strike in the East?" is the question foremost in the minds of military critics here, and the tendency of the general opinion among them is toward the belief that the new German chief of the Great General Staff is preparing for a gigantic effort to materialize his oft-repeated theory that "Russia must be beaten first."

Copenhagen advices are to the effect that the Kaiser has arrived on the Kovel front. Dispatches reported the arrival of Turkish contingents on the lines facing Riga. The official accounts of the last few days strongly indicate a gradual resumption of the offensive by the Germans.

Volhynia is looked on as the most probable scene of the expected Teutonic drive. A successful push from Kovel eastwards and the recapture of the Volhynian fortresses of Dubno and Lutsk, and possibly Rovno, the third of the triangle, would compel the Russians to withdraw their lines now menacing Halics and Lemberg in order to escape envelopment. A subsequent drive in the north, with Riga and Dvinsk as the immediate objectives, is looked for as the logical sequence of success in Volhynia and Galicia.

The German War Office reports the capture of 750 Russians west of Lutsk. It is added that the Muscovites are still holding "small portions" of the Teuton positions near Korytnisa, twenty-six miles southwest of Vladimir-Volynski.

Between the Sereth and Strypa rivers, near Zborow, forty-nine miles southeast of Lemberg, intense fighting continues. On the Narajovka river, northwest of Halicz, great artillery duels are raging, foreshadowing a new battle.

Petrograd stated there were "no developments of importance." Considerable Russian forces are reported to have been withdrawn to the Rumanian theatre. This is heralded by German forces as facilitating a new offensive in the east.

In the Carpathians the fortune of battle seems to be still favoring the Russians. Berlin officially admits the loss of the Smotrec summit, but added that attacks everywhere else were repulsed.

Britain to Release China Prisoners

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 23.—The British government has informed the State Department that the thirty-eight Germans, Austrians and Turks removed from the American ship China on the high seas several months ago will be released. A dispatch from the American Embassy in London states that the prisoners will sail from Sydney, September 28, for Shanghai via Hong Kong.

The Germans, Austrians and Turks were made captive by the British over the protest of the captain of the China. England resisted the American demand for their release on the ground that the men were passengers and had been guilty of conducting propaganda and other operations against British rule in India.

The State Department held there was no justification in international law for the removal of enemy subjects from a neutral vessel on the high seas bound to a neutral port, even if they could properly be regarded as enemy persons.

British Airmen Shell German Aerodrome.

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 23.—British naval aeroplanes yesterday successfully attacked the German aerodrome at St. Denis in West Flandera says today's official announcement by the admiralty.

The results were highly satisfactory. Reliable reports show that considerable material "damage" and many casualities resulted from previous aerial bombardments. The admiralty statement added that early today naval aeroplanes also conducted heavy attacks on enemy aerodromes at Ghistelles and Handscoene in the same part of West Flandera, inflicting considerable damage. All of the British aerodromes returned to their base.

WAR SUMMARY

According to the German official reports, the battle in the Dobrudja has turned in favor of the Teutonic allies.

The reports are somewhat obscure, however, and this victory may not prove to be complete or of any decisive importance.

The Rumanian reports of yesterday said that the Rumanian and Russian forces had thrust back the Teutons on the battle line from Rasova to Tuzla.

But the German report, coming later and dealing with subsequent fighting, was that "by an encircling counter attack against the flank and rear of the enemy, the Rumanians are being driven back in disorder."

On the face of the bulletins as applied to the map, what has happened is this: The Rumanians from Constanza almost to Cobadinu drove back the Teutonic forces. This line runs from northeast to southwest, while at Cobadinu the line turns to the northwest, almost at a right angle.

The Rumanian advance, therefore, uncovered the flank and rear of the Rumanian army, and a Teutonic attack upon this flank and rear, aimed from Cobadinu straight toward Constanza, forced the Rumanian retreat.

The actual result of this fighting will only be known with subsequent bulletins. If the Rumanian defeat is anywhere near complete, the results will be the loss of Constanza and of the Cernavoda bridgehead.

The Somme fighting, while bitter, has been for several days comparatively without result. The British and French have made some small gains, but these have nowhere been in any way decisive. Combles is still in German hands; so is Thiepval. Peronne is in no greater peril than it was a week ago. It is about time for another vigorous allied thrust hereabouts.

There has been scattered fighting along the southern Russian front, the Russians winning some small successes in the lower Carpathians. Nothing even approaching a decision has occurred in the campaign for the capture of Halicz.

The campaign north and west of Salonica has been held up by bad weather. Before long snow will fly hereabouts; but a Winter campaign is not out of the question.

The Italian front is busy, but nothing of importance has happened there.

U. S. THE "NATION TO BRING PEACE"

London, Sept. 23.—Budapest papers received in London contain the following report of a statement made by Count Albert Apponyi in the Hungarian Parliament in the course of a speech on the foreign policy of the Government and regarding the absence of the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador in Washington.

"It is one of the failures of the Foreign Minister that he did not appoint an ambassador in place of the discharged Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Washington.

"We are all living in hope that when at last peace comes and when the time arrives for a neutral power to offer her services, it will be the great republic across the Atlantic as most fit for a work of such magnitude. We all hope the United States administration will take the affair in hand sooner or later when they deem it proper to do so, and we find ourselves not even represented diplomatically in a proper manner.

"I know that certain steps or hints were offered on the part of the United States to the effect that the position of ambassador should be filled by the monarchy. In spite of this we have not yet moved, although the interests of the monarchy demand that we should have a reliable and able representative there."

"How does the Foreign Minister wish to solve this question, and when?"

In Hungarian political circles it is rumored that should Count Apponyi himself be asked to accept the mission as Ambassador to Washington he would not refuse to do so and that his appointment would be received most favorably in America, considering that they know him there very well and that he has an international reputation of high standing.

It is not considered impossible that should Count Andrassy become Foreign Minister of the monarchy in the near future, Count Apponyi would undertake the job in Washington.

VON MACKENSEN PUSHES AHEAD

By International News Service.

Sofia, Sept. 23.—The German-Turkish-Bulgarian army, led by Field Marshal von Mackensen, continues to drive back the Russian-Rumanian forces in the Dobrudja, according to today's official statement from the War Office. Von Mackensen's army is driving the enemy back in disorder. Cavalry is pursuing the retreating foe.

In Macedonia, between Lake Presba and Florina, the Bulgarian army annihilated enemy artillery.

An entire enemy battalion, advancing on Sborsko in the Mogielnica valley, was wiped out. The official statement says:

"Macedonia front—Between Lake Presba and Florina we annihilated enemy artillery and captured several trenches.

"Mogielnica valley—An entire enemy battalion, advancing on Sborsko, was annihilated.

"East of the Vardar we repulsed an attempted advance of the enemy and forced him to retreat. We captured the villages of Calmisch, Sveth and Petka, the enemy abandoning camps and much material.

"Dobrudja—A big battle has developed, but the enemy was forced to flee. He is being pursued by cavalry.

"Other fronts—Quiet."

GERARD ENGAGES PASSAGE FOR U. S.

By International News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 23.—James W. Gerard, American Ambassador, has tentatively secured passage on the Scandinavian American liner Frederick VIII, sailing from Copenhagen September 28. Mrs. Gerard will sail on the Frederick VIII, but it is still uncertain whether the ambassador will be able to take a vacation.

The matter is believed to depend on the developments in the German political situation within the next few days and whether Washington desires the ambassador to take his vacation at this time.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS FOR KEEPING UP WAR

By International News Service.

Paris, Sept. 23.—A declaration of the United Socialists read in the Chamber of Deputies affirmed the party's intention to continue to vote for war appropriations, stating that the party is ready to make every effort to insure France's territorial integrity and the restitution of Alsace-Lorraine as well as the political and economic independence of Belgium and Serbia. The declaration urges the allied governments to hasten the end of the war and to clarify the question as to how they propose to insure the independence of the small peoples.

Bremen Overdue at New London; Has Big Cargo

By International News Service.

New London, Sept. 23.—The German submarine merchantman that is expected here is the Bremen, about which there has been so much mystery. Instead of her being in the hands of the British, as has been reported, or at the bottom of the Atlantic, she is on her way here with a larger cargo than the Deutschland brought from Bremenhaven to Baltimore.

The Bremen was due here on Tuesday, according to a reckoning of time in which she might have made the passage from Heligoland under favorable weather conditions and by taking the shortest course. Thus she might be considered three days overdue, but it is supposed that her commander is taking a circuitous route to avoid steamship lanes.

British Bank to Finance Firm

London, Sept. 23.—Establishment of a British trade bank with a capital of $50,000,000 was recommended by a committee of which Baron Faringdon, chairman of the Great Central Railway, is the head.

The committee was appointed to consider the best means of meeting the needs of British firms after the war, with particular reference to financing large overseas contracts. It suggests that the proposed bank could fill the gap between the home banks and the colonial and foreign British institutions, and develop facilities not provided by the present system.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Such a bank as Baron Faringdon's committee proposes is one of the most important features of the recently published plan of the London Chamber of Commerce for British trade domination after the war.

Along with the scheme to divide the nations of the world into economic sections, separated by tariff walls, as allies, friendly neutrals, unfriendly neutrals and enemies, the Central bank was recommended in the chamber's report as essential to the unification of the British economic power.

It was suggested that capital for the bank be raised jointly by the government and the branch banks, and that offices be established wherever necessary, especially in the colonies which do not now have central banking houses, and in Russia, where it was said the idea of closer financial relations with England had been enthusiastically received.

WALSH INDORSES CHARLES H. COLE

Former Governor Walsh has indorsed General Charles H. Cole's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

The ex-Governor's name stands at the head of a list of prominent Democrats of Massachusetts who issued a statement urging all Democrats to vote for Cole at the primaries.

The statement declares that Cole's nomination is almost sure to mean his election as Governor of the Commonwealth.

Among those who signed the statement, besides ex-Governor Walsh, are ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, Chairman O'Leary of the Democratic State Committee, ex-Senator Roger Sherman Hoar of Concord, Congressman Peter F. Tague of Boston, ex-Congressman John A. Keliher, John F. McDonald and Judge Thomas F. Riley.

The statement, headed "Indorsement of Charles H. Cole," is as follows:

"The undersigned Democratic voters of the Commonwealth, realising the great importance and necessity of Democratic success, feel it their duty to urge all Democrats to attend the primaries on Tuesday next to vote for the nomination of Charles H. Cole as the Democratic candidate for Governor.

"Mr. Cole is a life-long Democrat, who has a long and splendid record of public service in various offices of responsibility in municipal and State governments. His wide acquaintanceship, pleasing personality, extensive public service, and his advocacy of sound progressive Democratic principles will make him a formidable candidate on election day, and we sincerely believe his candidacy will strengthen the national, State, county and local Democratic ticket in every part of the Commonwealth.

"In view of the many elements of weakness that have developed in the Republican State administration during the past few months Mr. Cole's nomination by the Democratic party at the primary election is almost sure to mean his election as Governor of the Commonwealth, for he is certain to attract to his candidacy the independent, dissatisfied, discontented voters who are not members of the Democratic party, as well as to unite and solidify the voters of the Democratic party."

WOMAN WITNESS IN TRIAL OF ROPER

When the trial of Albert J. Roper on a charge of murdering his father, Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, was resumed today in East Cambridge, Motorman Harry H. Davis was recalled for cross-examination. He described the turnouts and the telephones along his route through Tewksbury.

Mrs. Mabel E. Carter of Wilmington, wife of a Wilmington druggist, followed him on the witness stand.

She testified that she took a car from Wilmington to Lowell on the evening of March 1—the night of the murder—at about 6:15.

Q.—How do you place the date? A.—It was a holiday for my husband, and we were going to the theatre.

MACK WAS CONDUCTOR.

Q.—Who was the conductor? A.—Mr. Mack.

Q.—How did you know him? A.—I had known him three or four years.

Q.—Do you remember a young man seated two seats in front of you as you came to Chandler's turnout? A.—Yes.

Q.—How do you happen to remember him? A.—I noticed that he talked with the conductor at Chandler's turnout.

Q.—Describe his appearance? A.—He had a thin face, wore a brown hat and a mixed overcoat, and was slight to build.

Q.—How long did the car stay at the turnout? A.—About ten minutes.

DID NOT RETURN.

Q.—Did the young man return to the car? A.—No.

Crowley, the examining attorney, then called on Roper to stand up, and the witness looked at him.

Q.—Is that the man? A.—With(hesitation) I cannot say positively. There is a resemblance. That is all I can say.

She was cross-examined.

Q.—How many people were on the car at Chandler's turnout? A.—About eight.

Q.—Did you see any other person you remember? A.—Yes, a Mr. Small and a Mr. Palmer.

Q.—Was it a rainy night, chilly and raw? A.—Yes.

Tom Paulis, a Lowell motorman, followed her on the stand.

ACTOR JUMPS IN FRONT OF A TRAIN

New York, Sept. 23.—Louis Kelso Brennan, a vaudeville performer, known on the stage as Louis Kelso, leaped in front of a subway express train here and was killed. Passengers saw him pacing nervously up and down the station platform and then jump to the tracks as the train rushed in.

Stanley Brennan, a brother, is a business man in Worcester, Mass.

TWO MEN KILLED AS AUTO UPSETS

New York, Sept. 23.—Two men, one a policeman, were killed and three others seriously injured early today when a big touring car turned turtle on the approach to Pelham Bay bridge, in the Bronx. Policeman Edward F. Rohan and Alice Hanak were killed. Irwin Farrin, driver of the car, Thomas Murray and Dennis Manning were hurt. Two other men in the party escaped injury.

MAN SHOT DEAD AS HE ORDERS DRINK

New York, Sept. 23.—As he ordered a drink in a lower West Side bar today, Thomas Kavanaugh, foreman of a Cunard line dock, was shot and killed. The bartender had turned to mix the drink and when he whirled around at the report of a shot, he said, two men who had been standing near ran out of the door, one of them carrying a smoking gun. He could not give any clew to their identity.

AUTHOR OF 'BELLE OF NEW YORK' DEAD

London, Sept. 23.—Charles M. S. McLellan, playwright and author, died here today, aged fifty-one years. He wrote "The Belle of New York," "The Whirl of the Town," "The Telephone Girl" and other popular musical comedies of a decade ago. McLellan was born in Bath, Me., and had lived in London since 1897.

QUAKE RECORDED AT WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 23.—The seismograph at Georgetown University today recorded an earthquake of thirty-one minutes duration located somewhere within a radius of 2,500 miles from Washington. The first shock was recorded at 12:49 a. m., and the tremblings continued until 1:20 with moderate intensity.

CO-OPERATION OF BOARDS URGED

Co-operation for the promotion of common interests was strongly urged at a congress of boards of trade and chambers of commerce held in the High School of Practical Arts under the auspices of the Roxbury Board of Trade, Vice-President Victor Heath of that organization presiding.

Mayor Curley extended a welcome to the representatives. He pointed to the rise in prices as fully justifying the boards in undertaking that movement.

"In 1914," he said, "we bought our coal supply for the year for $3.68 a ton. Yesterday I signed a contract for 20,000 tons of bituminous coal at $7.10 a ton. Sugar in the same year was just over 4 cents a pound and today it is 7 cents. Fresh eggs were 50 cents and are now 62 cents. The cost of every necessity in life has about doubled in two years and wages have increased on the average only 7 per cent. Something must therefore be done for the people and something for trade."

Frances M. Carroll, director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, brought the indorsement of the proposed work by that body and said the movement would mean much for the community.

Walter C. Wardwell, president of the Cambridge Board of Trade, dwelt on the value of community interest and of working together for the good of all. He described some of the things which had been achieved in his own city.

Chairman Keath here announced a plan for giving away $2,000 in prizes to the people of Roxbury, the only condition being that merchandise must be purchased in a Roxbury store. Next week 100,000 coupons would be distributed.

Other speakers were Edgar Potter of the Framingham Board of Trade, President John Scott of the Quincy Board of Trade, President Alexander Kerr of Malden, Secretary James J. Gibbs of Dedham and ex-Mayor John O. Hall of Quincy.

The speaking was brought to a close by General Charles H. Cole, who dwelt on the value of organization and predicted that the conservative movement would develop the resources of the State and increase its trade.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF LINCOLN A BRIDE

TROOPS LIKELY TO START TUESDAY

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 23.—Hopes of an early departure for home ran high today among the men of the Massachusetts cavalry when each troop selected the best thirty-two horses on their picket lines and tagged them.

Under general orders each unit will be allowed to take back thirty-two horses, so the cavalrymen decided to make their choices in time. Lieutenant-Colonel Hornbrook has been a strict master, but the Massachusetts and Rhode Island cavalrymen have profited from his instructions and it is whispered that he hates to have them go.

HAVE WORKED HARD.

Major Schmitz's command made a splendid appearance in Thursday's parade. The cavalrymen have worked hard. Their mounts double their cares and their outpost duty at night has been through bad country. But they will return better horsemen and soldiers. Troops C and M of Rhode Island are still awaiting the arrival of the North Carolina troops who will relieve them. A Georgia squadron is expected to relieve the Massachusetts cavalry.

Major Harry G. Chase is also being complimented for the excellent showing made by his signal troops in the parade. The Bay State corps was the only signal corps that marched in the war strength division.

BATTALION INSPECTION.

Although the Massachusetts infantry regiments expected to receive the orders that will start them home, they did not arrive. The Ninth is packed and ready and when Quartermaster Hugh Maguire distributed traveling rations the men looked for the troop trains to back up any hour.

At the last minute, however, it was discovered that the army wished to finish battalion inspections in the Massachusetts brigade when everybody supposed they had been finished. The army inspector announced that he would complete the battalion tests Monday. The popular theory has been that the brigade would start for home by Sunday.

The delay is attributed by some to the new disturbances in Mexico. But no official date for the return of the Bay State troops had ever been made public. The impressions simply spread following general orders that pointed to an early movement.

A general order has been issued notifying the soldiers that they must not send home by mail horned toads and other living souvenirs. The post-office clerks remove all such pets and notify the senders. The climax was reached on September 16, when a live rattlesnake was found in a parcel post package. The soldier who mailed it is to be prosecuted under the act that forbids the "mailing of poisonous reptiles." The penalty is a $1,000 fine or two years' imprisonment.

CRAZE FOR TROPHIES.

The craze for trophies and pets is increasing as the time to go home draws nearer. The Bay State troops will carry back with them burros, goats and dogs to stock a zoo. Almost every officer has a burro for his own or neighbor's children.

Sergeant William H. Daliam of A Company, Signal Corps, who has been ill six weeks at the base hospital from complications following heat exhaustion, has returned to duty.

Sergeant Joseph Sullivan, A Company of the Ninth, has been stricken with an illness that is baffling the medical corps. There was a conference of nine doctors. They don't know whether it is a strange form of typhoid or something more malignant.

Charles Vogel of the Supply Company and Musician Onesine Beaudoin have been discharged under the dependents act and so has Private John J. Ingraham, K Company of the Fifth. Lieutenant Chester E. Baker, A Troop of the Cavalry, has resigned. He went home on a furlough owing to the critical illness of his wife, who has not improved.

First N. H. Regiment Receives Its Colors

Headquarters First New Hampshire Infantry, Laredo, Tex., Sept. 23.—Under balmy skies and with regimental spirit keyed to the highest note, the First New Hampshire Infantry formally welcomed the beautiful new colors presented by Governor Roland H. Spaulding. The ceremony, which took place upon the regimental drill grounds, was as unique as it was inspiring. First of all the troops on the border, the First New Hampshire boasts a regimental flag which flashes the mystic "N. G. N. H. U. S. A." of the federalized militia.

A throng of visitors from the city of Laredo and from Fort McIntosh motored out to the New Hampshire camp, attracted by the unusual ceremony of the escort of the colors and also the opportunity to see Colonel Sinclair, the Cuban veteran, who has come directly from the side of General Pershing to assume charge of the brigade comprising the First New Hampshire, Second Maine and Missouri regiments.

General Slocum was present with his staff and highly commended the New Hampshire troops upon the perfection of the ceremony. Company M of Newport, commanded by Captain Samuel Hedes and Lieutenants Taylor and Bowen, was designated by Colonel W. T. Healy as the escort to the colors. Captain Bertrand H. Hinman, commanding Company L and a member of the Governor's personal staff, stepped forward and formally presented the flags.

BAN SMOKING AT CLARK COLLEGE

Worcester, Sept. 23.—The college pipe, cigar and cigarette are taboo among Clark College students.

The faculty has decided to put a stop to all smoking about the campus and students have been notified to that effect. The order, it is said, was adopted because of the fact that many students entering Clark are young boys.

A luxurious smoking room has been maintained for the students. This will remain open, but without the smoking.

Report Big Hay Crop.

Contoocook, N. H., Sept. 23.—The largest hay crop on record is being reported in the farming country in this vicinity, with the result that thousands of tons of meadow hay will remain uncut because of lack of storage room in the barns.

U. S. Gunners Hit Target from Air

By International News Service.

Norfolk, Sept. 23.—That American gunners can hit a target from an aeroplane 1,000 feet in the air almost as well as they can from the deck of a battleship was demonstrated when two members of the Aerial Corps from the cruiser North Carolina made nine hits out of twelve shots. The firing was done during stormy weather, the gunners using small arms and bombs.

This is the first experiment of this kind conducted by the Atlantic fleet and practically every one of the fifty-two ships on the Southern drill took observations.

The targets were surrounded by the entire fleet, which the aeroplanes circled around various heights. The highest shooting was at 2,000 feet.

WILSON AND PAGE HOLD CONFERENCE

By FRANK R. LAMB

Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 23.—President Wilson today personally took up the British interference with American mails and the blacklisting of American business firms with Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to Great Britain. The President, it is understood, in no uncertain terms told Mr. Page that the British Foreign Office must be made to understand that the United States will not tolerate the acts which have been protested.

Mr. Page was with the President a long time this morning.

The President went over the entire British situation with him.

Brakeman Killed in Car Smashup

Maurice Fitzgerald, thirty-eight and married, of No. 134 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, a brakeman on the Boston & Maine, was instantly killed today when the coal train on which he was working crashed into a number of empty passenger coaches near the coal trestle on Charlestown avenue in Cambridge.

The engine was pushing two coal cars into a coal trestle to unload the coal into the bins. The switch was misplaced and the train ran onto another track and crashed into the empty passenger coaches.

Fitzgerald was standing on the end of the car that struck the first empty coach, and as the heavy car telescoped the passenger train he was thrown under.

A pile of wreckage fell about him, killing him instantly.

HUGHES BAN ON OPEN AIR TALKS

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 23.—With his voice still in bad shape, but immensely pleased over the old-fashioned rooter's celebration last night, Charles E. Hughes left here today for the third and last lap of his Indiana tour.

Despite the danger to his throat, Governor Hughes will stick to his original program, which calls for eight speeches on this last day.

He was decided after a consultation with his physician, Dr. Alexander T. All speeches, however, will be made indoors and their will be curtailed as much as possible.

In Fowler, Michigan City, Valparaiso, Rochester, Plymouth and several smaller points were to be visited today. The tour will be wound up tonight in Indianapolis.

Crimson in First Game Plays Colby at Stadium

Over in the Harvard Stadium this afternoon the opening of the football season in these parts is heralded, with Colby, one of the four Maine colleges, opposing the Crimson.

Admirers of the Harvard team have their first chance to see the boys in scrimmage, as secret practice has prevailed ever since the players got down to real business on Soldiers Field.

For the first time in more than eight years Harvard starts its gridiron program minus the mighty guiding hand of the famous head coach, Percy D. Haughton, now serving time as president of the Boston Braves.

The big chief may possibly get a few hours off from counting 'em up at the "Home of Big Things" to watch the Crimson show, minus his winning touch, but the word of another than he will direct Harvard's moves on the football checkerboard spread out in the Stadium today.

Coach Leo Leary is now ruling the Harvard gridiron roost until Haughton himself turns his back on his baseball interests.

HARVARD LOOKS FOR VICTORY.

Harvard is expected to win this afternoon's bout by three touchdowns. Its eleven has had two weeks' start on Colby in conditioning its players and is therefore better prepared for a hard fight, especially since from twenty to thirty 2-a-w will oppose the visiting team, which possesses but three or four substitutes.

Harvard won last year's contest, which opened the local season also, by the score of 29 to 6. Colby was overwhelmed but fought back gamely, scoring a touchdown after the Crimson had piled up 20 points.

The visitors present a veteran team, handicapped only by lack of condition. The rushline, with the exception of Dow at centre, is composed of the same men who represented the college through last Fall.

The backfield likewise is seasoned, Brownville at quarterback, being a new man, but Captain Cawley, Harry Bourne, the Alston boy, and Buck Fraser are a fine trio of halfbacks.

CRIMSON HAS SPEEDY ELEVEN.

Five of Harvard's "H" men start this afternoon's canter. Harris, Chadman plays right guard, while Jose Harris, centre, Mose Taylor and Dick Harris are the other veterans on the rushline. Ralph Horween, though hurt slightly, is to start in the Crimson backfield.

Hank Flower and Rufe Bond, his running mate, are to be opposed by a pair of prospects as have come to the Stadium since Ned Mahan matriculated.

Flower is a track man and a demon for runs where speed or dodging is necessary. He will also do the punting. Bond is looked for for some fine defensive work, especially in breaking up forward passing.

Drop kicks, too, are to be left to the Everett redhead, if necessary, who is to commence the game at quarterback, will be called on to do little other than run his team.

LARGE CROWD LOOKED FOR.

Harvard's line of forwards, with Dadmun, Clark and Bourne weighing 200 or over, should outweigh Colby and open up big gaps in the visitors' breastworks, through which backs like Flower and Horween can be sent for telling gains.

A fine crowd is expected for the opener, for although college does not reopen until Monday, practically nearly all the boys are in town and ready to start the academic season right.

Worcester, Sept. 23.—Holy Cross and the Connecticut Aggies clash this afternoon in the opening game of the local football season.

The purple warriors feel confident they can down the Connecticut eleven although they are without the services of several of last year's stars, who either failed to return or were graduated.

Twichell, a Greater Boston boy, will be at quarter for Holy Cross in place of Devlin.

The Aggies have almost an entirely new team and little is known of their real strength. Holy Cross will depend on its speed, as it has a very light, but exceptionally fast eleven.

CRACK YALE BACK CHASED OFF SQUAD

New Haven, Sept. 23.—For violating the strict training rules which the Yale coaches this week ordered put into effect, Robert Theobald, one of the best halfbacks of the second team, was dropped permanently from the squad.

Two touchdowns were scored by the varsity halfbacks, Stewart and Jacques. Only straight line plunges were tried and no improvement in team play was shown by both backfield and rush line. Paul Veeder joined the visiting coaches.

SCHOOL TEAMS CLASH

Watch City Gridiron Champions Meet Marlboro Eleven in Opening of Season.

Marlboro High opposes Waltham High today in the first game of the season to be played on the Waltham Athletic Field. The Watch City eleven starts with but three of last year's first line veterans in the lineup, and, while the backfield is somewhat lighter than usual, the home team feels confident of victory.

At that Marlboro, with several veterans on deck, should prove no easy foe for the Walthamites. McGinnis, the star fullback, will play and the home crew will have a hard task keeping him from making his usual long gains. As a line-plunger he is a marvel and will bear watching.

McGahan, at left end, Smith, at quarterback, and Cole, at fullback, will be the 1915 first-stringers to start for Waltham. Several others played last Fall, but only those three can be tagged as genuine veterans.

Coach McGee expects his team to get in at fullback, broke his nose in practice early in the week and will be out. Cole, last year's star right end, will play in Cousens' stead, and, although much lighter, is expected to prove a worthy substitute.

Marlboro has been practicing strenuously for the game. Coach Freeman Hatch has been assisted by George Hayes, last year's coach, rounding the boys into shape. Coach Frodd of Waltham is not worrying about the outcome of the game, in fact, hopes to keep the visitors from as much as scoring.

MEDFORD ON EDGE FOR WOBURN BATTLE

Medford High will line up against Woburn High in the annual gridiron contest for both schools on Medford High Field this afternoon. Medford should have little difficulty in winning from the light visiting squad, as it is generally looked upon to repeat its 1915 performance and carry away the Suburban League championship.

While Woburn has had but little practice, Coach McGee expects his youngsters to make a good showing. The Medford lineup:

Medford, le.; Captain Larkin, Lt.; Kelley, l.g.; Sanford, c.; Beatty or Capasso, r.g.; Keefe or Hanson, r.t.; Campbell, re.; Sullivan or Donnellan, q.b.; Swenson, l.h.b.; Leary or Mooney, r.h.b.; Bates, f.b.

SIGNS MORAN-FULTON.

New York, Sept. 23.—Heavyweights Frank Moran and Fred Fulton have signed to box-it in Madison Square Garden October 12.

JABS AND JOLTS.

"DARBY" KELLY, Johnny O'Leary's pet, boxes little Jack Wise the AMERICAN boy, and he will reach Boston sfonday morning with his charge.

O'LEARY goes on with Vic Moran, the noted Southland lightweight, now in Joe McCarthy's stable, in the windup event at the Arena next Tuesday night. Kelly is confident O'Leary is going to dispose of Moran. Then, "Darby" wants Johnny Dundee again for the Seattle boy.

A return O'Leary-Hammer bout looms up as a better card, providing O'Leary wins from Moran, which is far from a sinecure, than putting O'Leary back against Dundee. The Scotch-Wop proved his complete superiority over Johnny; in fact, mayhaps he stopped that lively ringster for all times.

DANNY GOODMAN writes from New York stating that Baltimore wants him to send Young Pal Moore, his crack bantamweight, against "Kid" Williams October 16. Goodman has sent us his record, which is O. K. and if they are accepted articles will be signed at once.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 23.—With two exceptions the eleven that Head Coach Frank Cavanaugh of Dartmouth will start against New Hampshire State today in the Green's opening game of the season, will be composed of veterans.

The new men in the line-up are Farrows, who replaces "Pat" Speare at right guard, and Ed Healy, the "scrappy" transfer from Holy Cross, who is to fill the position at left tackle left vacant by the graduation of Jack McAuliffe.

The indefatigability of Spears, All-American guard for two seasons, weakened the line to a considerable degree, but the work of the experienced backfield trio, Captain-Gerrish, Duhamel and Thielscher, is expected to more than offset this.

The New Hampshire State line is said to average around 190 pounds from tackle to tackle.

Everett on with Colby Juniors

Everett High lines up against Colby Academy, on the Everett athletic field, this afternoon in its opening game of the season.

"Ginger" Fraser, Everett coach, is a Colby graduate and is anxious to show his alma mater just what a fast aggregation Massachusetts High school can put in the field. At the same time he is equally desirous of making a good showing in his debut as Cleo O'Donnell's successor.

In the Colby lineup will be seen "Bob" Blair and Nelson Ladd, two fast men from last year's Medford High team and Ernest Martin and O'Connor, stars of the 1914 English High eleven.

Captain Marshall has been drilling the squad under Fraser's direction and Everett, while mostly new material, will put a heavy team into the field. The Everett line-up follows:

Howard, l. e.; Hamilton, l. t.; Thomas, l. g.; Perkins, c.; D. Bond, r. g.; H. Bond, r. t.; Fraser, r. e.; Dearing or Gill, q. b.; Captain Marshall, l. h. b.; Sweetland or Lisio, r. h. b.; Bray, f. b.

BUSHER GIVES HON. WELSH A HOT TIME

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 23.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, found no easy pickings when he met Harry Andersen, a mediocre lightweight, here. It was as near a draw as could have been figured, but Welsh got the decision. From gong to gong, Anderson carried the fight to Welsh.

BRICKLEY TO BE IN LINEUP

Boston College Coach Will Play in Backfield in Today's Game with Neponset Wanderers

Boston College stages its initial football clash of the season this afternoon on Alumni Field when Coach Brickley's squadron plays a practice game with the Neponset Wanderers. Brickley intends appearing in the backfield with his team, so as to see how his men go under fire.

The team under Brickley's tutelage has been whipped into good condition during the past two weeks and is expected to show results.

The Neponset Wanderers, composed of former college and prep school boys, is heavier than the average college team, but the Boston College squad expects to run up a fairly big score.

Jim Fitzpatrick, Boston College's kicking wonder, has been out of practice a couple of days this week with a bruised hip, but will appear in the backfield. There is some curiosity to see how he boots the ball under actual playing conditions.

Hanlon, the former Georgetown halfback, has reported to Coach Brickley. Hanlon was rated a good player on the Blue and Grey and is expected to prove a valuable acquisition to Boston College. Davidson, the Everett grandstretcher, has also joined the squad.

Somerville Boys To Make Bow

Somerville High will open its season this afternoon on Recreation Field with Fitchburg Normal. Somerville has the best-looking material that has turned out for a team in a number of years and its chances for the championship appear very bright.

Captain Ned Keating will be unable to take part in the game, owing to an injury received in practice Thursday. Somerville's backfield will consist of Downey, at right half; Shea, at left half; Thornton at fullback, and Smith, at quarterback.

Treat will be at centre, owing to Conlon being out on account of injuries; Reardon and Ford will fill the guard positions; Roach and Gilman, tackles, with Cotter and Hirshon on the ends.

Auto Zombro Is Beaten in Stake

Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—Three races, all purse events, were on the Grand Circuit card. All three went into split heats. The 2:06 pace, the heaviest betting event of the meeting, resulted in the defeat of the favorite, Auto Zombro.

After five heats, Barlight taking the first three and Judge Ormonde the next two, the race went over until today. The 2:09 trot was won by Pittsburgh, while Young Todd annexed the 2:18 pace.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

New York, Sept. 23.—Phil Bloom and Leo Johnson fought ten fast rounds at the Harlem Sporting Club. Bloom was entitled to a close decision because of his superior aggressiveness.

O'Leary to Box Moran Should Be Lots Doing

By RINGSIDE.

After all the tame, frail boxing the Greater Boston fans have been asked to sit through at the flatic sessions at the Arena, practically week in and week out all Summer, the sure-enough, slam-bang number, Joe Connolly, the Charlestown Bearcat, and Terry Brooks, the West End Terror, pulled last Tuesday night made the bit of bike.

We are referring wholly to the bout itself; not the disgraceful riot which followed, when Connolly's corner, re-scored by a delegation of his admirers, so roughly assaulted Brooks, a veteran little ringster, whose fighting career is spotlessly clean; a newsboy, who is on his job seven days a week; married and a lad with a family. Yes, Bo, that was rough stuff pulled at the Arena last Tuesday night, but the management feels it was in no way to blame and is going to take precious good care to see it is never repeated.

The Connolly-Brooks battle, which went ten and one-half rounds, ending when Terry was unfortunate enough to land a blow, aimed at the stomach, below the waist line, hence being disqualified by Referee Maffitt Flaherty, doped to be an especially lively encounter, nor was Old Pop Dope dealt any jar.

WAS A ROUGH BOUT.

It fairly oozed all over in sound almost-unbridled whaling and pert punching. Absolutely no science is embraced in the ring repertoire of either ringster. Both are battlers pure and simple; workmen of the Tom Sharkey species.

This rollicking number proved most refreshing to the fans, following all those recent and tapping, jabbing bouts. The week before "Irish Patsy" Cline and Harry Donahue put up twelve of the saddest rounds imaginable in what was billed as the "feature bout." Then, prior to that sad sette there were a lot of other "main attractions" just as docile and uninteresting.

Connolly and Brooks showed the way with the rough stuff. Still, the two fighters themselves are to be congratulated for the good deportment they showed all the way. If bad claret really existed between them, prior to Tuesday night, they didn't show by their actions such was the case. There was some rough milling in close quarters, also some slipdowns. But after each breach of the rules Joe and Terry shook hands with each other.

While it will take Mish Murray and his conferees a long time to bring two such hope-to-die biff boys together again—and it now looks as if the return Connolly-Brooks battle will never be fought, in the ring—they are bent upon side-stepping the rubber arm as possible and favor the spry, active workmen in all future bookings.

BOTH BOYS ARE LIKED.

For next Tuesday night the Armory A. A. is bringing two lively lightweights together, Johnny O'Leary, originally of Seattle, Wash., but now of Buffalo, N. Y., and Vic Moran of New Orleans, claimant of Southland's 135-pound championship.

Both have made good at the Arena this Summer. They appear well matched and their scrap is almost bound to please. Leatherneck will not be crowded with tight tapping and shadow boxing. For be it

It must necessarily be replete with action, with the loser getting quite a lambasting.

LESTER DORE PUTS ATLAS BELLE OVER

Rochester, N. H., Sept. 23.—Atlas Belle, driven by Lester Dore, proved to be the class in the 2:19 trot, the feature event on the getaway day card at the Rochester Fair. Jack Kingsley drew second money with Alice Aldredi and Frank Fox third with Lucky Clover.

Bobbie C. won his second start of the meet in the 2:25 trot. The 2:21 pace was an easy win for Dream Life. Art Gray was second with the Boston owned horse, Don McKinney.

Manokin Wins As Turfites Groan

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 23.—When Manokin came home ahead of Kohi-noor and Yankee Witch in the fifth race, a loud wail went up from the backers of the two latter horses.

Manokin was beaten in his three previous starts by fourteen, five and seven furlongs, respectively. This time he ran over the field, defeating stakewinner anead making them look like cheap selling-platters.

Jockey Anderson threw the third race away on Gleaming when St. Charlcote stole up on him after the former had the race all to himself. Anderson refused to give the gelding his head and as a result was beaten.

AD WOLGAST SAYS HE CAN DEFEAT WELSH

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—Ad Wolgast, one time lightweight champion, is back in San Francisco after an absence of more than three years.

"I beat Welsh on July 4, but Referee Otto Floto disqualified me for fouling," said Ad. "I can still beat that bunk champion. If they are looking for a man to fight him in Tijuana, I'm the boy. Let 'em say the word and see how quickly I'll jump at the match."

MRS. KID LAVIGNE HAS HUBBY PINCHED

Detroit, Sept. 23.—"Kid" Lavigne, former lightweight champion of the world, was arrested by police here enough Thursday night, his wife charges, to beat her so badly she had to be taken to the hospital. The arrest while prize fighter was in the police court, but the case was put over until Monday.

Wagner Plans to Join Benedicts in Fall, Thus Making Evers Old League's Veteran Player

Johnny Evers, the Braves' noble captain, who is being so sorely missed by his team in the stretch run, gave it out today that he learns from W. C. Temple, former owner of the Pittsburgh Nationals and donor of the Temple Cup, who is in Boston, being treated by the same dentist Evers is calling on daily, that providing Honus Wagner isn't kidding the bandy-legged Dutchman will bring his baseball career to a close this year.

Yep, Wagner intends joining the Benedicts the coming Winter, so Evers says Temple told him. Honus will announce his permanent retirement after the ceremony takes place, it is said.

With Wagner out of baseball next year, Evers will be the daddy of the National League. The Trojan joined the Cubs in 1902 and Honus is the only National Leaguer who was playing at the time the late Frank Selee took Evers out to Chicago.

Evers was born March 21, 1883, and at thirty-four bids fair being the National League's veteran player.

Mays to Face Indians

Sox Going Full Speed

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—Carl Mays, Tiger tamer, will probably be Manager Carrigan's pitching nominee in the second clash between the Red Sox and Indians at Dunn's Park today. Mays may be opposed by Joe Boehling. Washington castoff, who trimmed his old teammates the other day in a very impressive manner. If Boehling doesn't draw the job it looks as if Fred Beebe will.

Although the pennant is practically theirs, the Boston champions do not intend to let up for a minute. They've been through the mill once and know what over-confidence means.

A strong south wind was the biggest factor in the Red Sox 4-1 victory over the Indians yesterday, it triumph the Boston players believe means the flag for them. Chief Carrigan had his misgivings about the series with the Redskins, figuring that his noble athletes might be too confident and work their own undoing.

But back to the wind. It was in the eighth inning that Tris Speaker came to bat and found the bases populated with his teammates, two out and Boston one run to the good. Allison has walked, and when Bagby sacrificed, Cady threw to second too late to retire Allison. A pass to Gainer packed the cushions. Next Barbare forced Allison at the plate.

HOOPER ROBS SPEAKER.

Speaker, however, drove viciously to right field, one of those up-over affairs. It looked like a cinch the ball would hit high up on the screen, if not actually clear it, but the wind caught the ball and retarded its progress to such an extent Hooper was able to back up against the wall and gather it in.

Thus at least three and possibly four good runs went to seed and Speaker's heart dropped within him, as he surely wanted that three-bagger or homer, which he would have secured under ordinary weather conditions. Then, too, Tris was anxious to stop the onward march of his old teammates.

Jim Bagley and Ernie Shore were the opposing pitchers, and although the Red Sox scored two runs in the second inning on three hits, they were really entitled to only one run and one hit, Hobitzel's double following when Wambsganss allowed Roth's throw get away from him.

HA-HA CADY TRIPLES.

Lewis came next with a single, but Umpire Nallin had his back turned when Wambsganss dashed and tripped Duffy off first. Cady then inserted a triple past Turner on the hit-and-run and the second tally was accounted for.

That was enough to win for the Red Sox, but they added two more in the ninth, aided by two hits, two infield sacrifices, one of which was the "squeeze" engineered by Hoblitzell and Lewis's outfield sacrifice drive.

Bagby set the Red Sox down in order from the second until the ninth. Incidentally, Shore pitched superbly throughout.

TODAY'S CRICKET CARD.

The Everett and Canton teams clash in the final game in the Massachusett State Cricket League at Everett this afternoon. Teams captained by Chambers and Pellitt play at Lonswood. The St. Georges-West Indis game at Wood Island has been called off.

Wheat Idle; Gains Two Points in Batting Race.

The race for batting supremacy in the National League became a bit closer as the result of yesterday's warfare. Hal Chase, the present leader, made but one hit in five times at bat and lost a fraction less than two points. Zach Wheat, the Brooklyn Bombardier, took a day off and because of it gained two points on Chase.

Roger Hornsby and Jake Daubert also gained two points each on Chase and Wheat. The relative positions of the four players, however, remain the same.

Here is how they stand to date:

	At Bat.	Hits.	Aver.
Chase	514	170	.330
Wheat	538	173	.321
Hornsby ..	468	149	.318
Daubert ..	440	139	.316

The batting in the American League was without any particular feature. Tris Speaker made only one hit in four times at bat and lost approximately a point as the result of his day's work. Ty Cobb had two official times at bat and also went hitless. He, too, lost a point.

Here are the up-to-date averages of the two:

	At Bat.	Hits.	Aver.
Speaker ..	522	201	.385
Cobb	514	182	.354

HOPE FOR ILLINOIS BOXING MEASURE

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Chicago's hopes of a boxing bill were revived when Eddie Santry, former featherweight boxer, now referee and State representative, declared he would make another determined effort to give this State a bill when the Legislature meets again. Santry declares the obstacle that blocked the bill last session has been overcome, and he is certain of its passage.

"I have been working on the old members of the Legislature, men who are certain to remain at Springfield, and they have assured me the time is ripe for a bill. We have and will have much new young blood next year, which will be a big help."

Eastern League to Slice Circuit

Worcester, Sept. 23.—Sentiment among directors of the Eastern Baseball League, at a special meeting held here, was said to favor an eight-club circuit for next year, instead of ten clubs, with which the past season started.

No formal action on the matter will be taken, however, until the annual meeting of the league here October 16.

MACOMBER ENTRY FAVORITE FOR CUP

Louisville, Sept. 23.—One of the smallest, though probably the best, fields which has faced the barrier since the inauguration of that event will start in the fourth renewal of the Louisville Cup for three-year-olds and upwards, at two miles, at Douglas Park here today.

Of the twenty-four horses nominated for this event not more than six are expected to go to the post, of which, it is possible, three will be from the stable of A. K. Macomber. The latter's eligibles are Star Hawk, Dodgs and Hank O'Day. Star Hawk appears to be the public choice and probably will go to the post an odds-on favorite. Among the others expected to start are Kilmana, Embroidery and Water Witch.

RED SOX REFUSE TO STOP

Only Miracle Now Can Beat Carrigan's Champions Out of World's Series Split.

While the Red Sox won in their opening game with the Cleveland club they were unable to pull away from the clubs that are hanging close to their heels in the fight for the flag in the American League. This, however, does not in any way make the race closer than it was. The World's Champions have practically won the hunting and whatever the Tygers or White Sox do in the games that remain to be played will have to be something extraordinary to upset the Carrigan Crew.

The fans of Boston have accepted the situation as being final and have made requests for World Series tickets in large numbers. The Royal Rooters have been notified to get busy, and in every way the city is taking on the appearance of the "big excitement."

The World's Champions are playing their last stand in the West and return to Boston for the finish of the season's activities in baseball. This gives them an advantage, as they play upon familiar ground and before friendly crowds. When they return the boys will undoubtedly be greeted with large and enthusiastic gatherings of fans eager to show them that their gameness is appreciated.

The Red Sox will repeat without Tris Speaker, a star ball player who is probably the leading batsman of the year in the league. They will repeat without the services at a critical time of Jack Barry, than whom there is none better at second base. It will repeat with other players missing from the lineup and it will repeat because it didn't know when it was licked.

This kind of spirit is appealing to the fans of the city and country as well.

The situation now appears to be that the World Beaters will meet the Brooklyn club for the big title.

BRAVES LOSE AGAIN.

The Braves were the only team to suffer as a result of the happenings in the National League yesterday. Both Brooklyn and Philadelphia gained on them, as well as the Giants. As remarked before the battle now simmers down to a race between Philadelphia and Brooklyn. With the Patinorans to land the games scheduled with Cincinnati today while the Robins were losing a pair to Chicago the Phillies would draw up to within a game of the lead. But five percentage points would then separate the two teams.

Today Philadelphia has a lead of two and a half games over the Braves and the Robins are the same distance ahead of the Phillies. The Giants, a club which has failed of consideration up to very recently, are now but eight and a half games out of the lead and have the mathematical chance of landing. This chance however encumbers them with the task of landing all of the teams they have left to play, with Brooklyn and Philadelphia losing practically all of theirs.

GIANTS HAVE A CHANCE.

The Giants' chance is slightly greater than that of the Braves.

As a result of the games played by the three leaders in each league yesterday their standings this morning are as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	To Play	W.	L.	P. C.
Red Sox	12	85	59	.590
White Sox	7	84	63	.571
Tygers	6	84	64	.568

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	To Play	W.	L.	P. C.
Robins	13	86	55	.610
Phillies	12	83	57	.593
Braves	12	78	57	.578

The figures show the Red Sox to be two and half games ahead of the White Sox and three games ahead of the Tygers. Consequently, in view of the fact that all three are playing single games today no change in the order of standings can result except that Detroit would once more head Chicago in event of a win and loss in the respective games.

With two of the three leading teams in the National League playing doubleheaders a chance presents itself for a percentage gain on the part of all concerned. With the Robins to lose two while the Phillies are landing the Quakers will pull up to within five points of the lead and would be but half a game back. The Braves by landing two while the Phillies were losing one would gain a number of points and also would assume a position but one game back of second place and three games back of the lead. However, it seems improbable that Brooklyn will lose two to the Cubs.

SOCCER SHOTS

LYNN Hibs F. C. now leads the Boston District League, having won the three games played, a total of six points. St. Georges and Trimos are the runners up with four points each.

THE loss of Bob Grier to the Trimos will be a hard one for Manager McGregor to fill. Grier is going back to the New Bedford F. C.

* * *

THE St. George-Brockton game which will be played at Brockton today was originally scheduled for Everett, but as Glendale Park will have cricket and baseball, the transfer became necessary.

* * *

TWO games will be played in Lynn today, the 41, E's against Beverly in the Lawrence-Lowell and District League and Lynn Mike-Fore River in the Boston and District League.

* * *

THE American soccer team has arrived on the Oscar II. from Sweden. The boys from this side came back with the majority of points. Tommy Swords of Fall River showed up to good advantage, and was the captain of the team.

* * *

THE national cup series gets under way on Sunday with the newly organized New York Football Club meeting the West-Hudsons at Clark's Field, Newark. The other team to represent New York in the competition is the Brooklyn F. C.

* * *

THE two players that were put out of the Hibs-Brockton game last Saturday were brought up under charges before the league officials on the report of the referee. They were let down with a reprimand.

PENINSULA TEAMS IN TITLE REPLAY

The second game in the series for the championship of South Boston between the Gate of Heaven Club and the Pere Marquette, K. of C. team, will be replayed today at 3 p. m.

OUIMET'S VIEW ON MATCH

Tilt With Evans Is Out of Question at This Time, Says Former National Champion.

New York, Sept. 23.—Francis Ouimet former open champion and former amateur golf champion, was asked yesterday what he thought about the challenge issued by Evans to Travers and himself.

Ouimet said he should not have been dragged into the affair as he has been barred from the amateur ranks. "I don't want to make any comment on Chick's article," said Ouimet, "and, as far as playing a match at this time, it is out of the question.

"I will say this about the gallery that I have played before in New York. I consider them the fairest in the country and I will not except my own home town, where it is natural that they should want to see me win over a rival from some other city.

"In Chicago they want to see Evans win, as he is a Chicago boy. In Boston they would rather see me win, and in New York Jerry Travers would be their favorite, although I think they are good enough sports to want to see the best man come out victorious. I have always found them this way, and I like to play before such a crowd.

"This is not only so in golf, but in other sports. I know that they often root for visiting ball clubs at the Polo Grounds, and you hardly see this in other towns. Ball players have told me that they feel more at home in New York than in any other city. I know this must be so because I have found it to be the case in golf."

MERKLE IS ELIGIBLE FOR WORLD'S SERIES

Twenty-two players are eligible to play for the Brooklyn club in the world's series. The list includes Fred Merkle, who, it is understood, will split his share with McCarty, if the Dodgers get into the series. The list of eligibles follows:

Edward Appleton, L. R. Cheney, J. W. Coombs, George W. Cutshaw, Jacob E. Daubert, Otis Crandall, Casey Jones, H. Johnston, Walter Mails, R. J. Marquard, John J. Myers, Otto Miller, H. H. Mowrey, Fred Merkle, H. H. Myers, I. M. Olson, Ollie O'Mara, Edward J. Pfeffer, G. N. Rucker, Ahorrod M. Smith, C. D. Stengel, Zach Wheat.

The Brooklyn club has drafted Infielder Lewis A. Malone from the St. Paul club.

SELIG BUYS RIGHTS TO FILM BIG GAMES

Chicago, Sept. 23.—W. N. Selig has purchased from Chairman Herrmann of the National Commission the exclusive rights to film the World's Series games. It is understood the price is $25,000.

Selig will have a special car with dark room appliances, cutting room and developing equipment and the pictures will be put on the market forty-eight hours after each game.

ROOTERS ISSUE CALL

John M. Killeen Makes Plans for Attending World's Series Games Next Month.

This is the first call for the Royal Rooters.

It comes from John M. Killeen, of the Royal Rooters' executive committee.

The Rooters are to be on their toes from now on, waiting for the word.

"I look for a big time like the Brooklyn," Mr. Killeen said today to the AMERICAN, "and we already have the word from Ebbetts that our complete party will be taken care of in fine shape and as well as we were in Baltimore in '96, Pittsburgh in '03, in New York in 1912, and in Philadelphia in 1913, and last year.

"Ready waiters, from now on, will be the Continental Hotel in Essex street. The various details will be announced from time to time in the newspapers. The committee earnestly desires that all members of the Rooters, and particularly candidates for membership to the club, keep an eye upon their rehearsal of the greatest and most famous of baseball songs, 'Tessie.'

"For several weeks the committee has been constantly in touch not only with the two Boston managements, but with Detroit and Chicago, in the American League, and with Brooklyn and Philadelphia, in the National organization.

"We have kept out of the newspapers because of our fear of the jinx. It seemed to us that by advertise Boston's confidence of copping, in either league, was certain to bring the jinx upon us.

"Today, however, it appears certain that the Carrigans are there, and I speak seasonably in order that every Royal Rooter may be prepared to do his full duty by the members of the club, good Joe Lannin, and the best baseball town in all the world."

WARD COMPLETES PARTY.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Arsly E. Ward, the crack local sprinter, junior and national 100 and 220-yard champion, will be the United States' fifth athlete at the Stockholm games next month. Ward will ball with Joe. C. Loomis, Ted Meredith, Nate Simpson and Fred Murray from New York next Thursday.

AFTER Jimmy Barton had entrusted the Ainsley jewels to my keeping, he hurried back to reconnoiter and met his side-de-camp, Robert Wells, looking rather disconsolate and unsuccessful.

"I couldn't keep him. He went out!" confessed Wells.

Jimmy gave an exclamation of impatience and rushed out, followed by Bob.

Just ahead of them he could see Versale dragging the other party to his elopement across the lawn. The girl appeared to be struggling. That puzzled Jimmy, but it was explained a moment or two later.

The suddenness with which Versale flung me into the car just when I expected that he would spurn me to earth was due to the fact that he meant to foil Jimmy and his pursuers somehow, and the best way seemed to be to go ahead with whatever girl he happened to be able to secure as party to his elopement.

Failing Martha or Nita, why not this strange girl, who might prove an amusing companion—or the means of extorting generous hush money.

In the second which elapsed between Jimmy's almost subconscious recognition of me and Versale's flinging me into the car, another actor in the comedy—or tragedy—of the two dominos appeared on the scene. It was Martha, cloaked and ready for flight. Jimmy fairly tore her mask from her face. And then the absolute truth came over him. This was Martha Ainsley—and Beatrice Fairfax was party to an elopement in which she had no part.

Almost breathlessly he whirled on Robert with a command: "Versale got the jewels and Beatrice. Get your car—be quick, man."

A Wild Chase

And as he spoke the gray speedster whirled around the edge of the estate and tore up the street with a rush of wind eddying about it.

A second later Bob's roadster puffed up the driveway. Even as Jimmy prepared to leap into it another figure catapulted ahead of him. It was Martha Ainsley. Some impulse of sporting blood, or vengefulness, or mere feminine curiosity impelled her to take part in the chase of her errant lover and her also errant jewels. The only place left for Jimmy was the running board. He crouched there and clung to the side of the car.

Then, with a thunder from the released cut-out, Bob's car tore up the road after the speedster.

The natives of a certain portion of Long Island must have thought that an amateur Vanderbilt cup race was being run in the early dawn of that June day, for from darkness to the vague first beginnings of light the maroon roadster tore up highways and byways in pursuit of that elusive gray speedster, which managed to keep its lead and almost seemed ready to increase it.

There were moments when the road stretched straight away ahead of the pursuers, and Jimmy could see Versale pearing back and could fancy the malicious expression which that gentleman's face must wear. That the gentleman's arm encircled the shoulders of the feminine passenger all of them knew.

The Girl Repents

Once Jimmy removed his eyes long enough from the gray demon ahead of them to study Martha Ainsley. Her pretty face wore an almost vindictive look. Her hand lay lightly on one of the wrists so tensely guiding the steering wheel, and above the noise of the muffler Jimmy could hear the girl calling:

"Faster, faster, Bob! That little frog-eating beast has my jewels. He'll go to prison for this—if only you catch him. Please, Bob, please catch him. I'll do anything for you if only you get me back my jewels. Why, he has the pearls Sir Ainsley brides always wear. I can't let him have them."

Jimmy smiled himself and wondered if Bob Wells' attention was so completely focused on the race he was running that he was not aware of the fact that he was being very delicately and subtly proposed to—but proposed to nevertheless.

Then in answer to Martha's plea the maroon car suddenly shot ahead with an almost insane burst of speed. Closer and closer it came to the gray demon ahead. Suddenly Versale loomed up over the back of the car, took steady aim and fired deliberately at the three in pursuit.

We had been flying along wildly with a dogged attempt of greater and greater speed, which told me even before Versale began shouting to Butch not to let them catch us, who "they" were.

I knew my question as to Jimmy's whereabouts was answered. He was going to leave Nita and the jewels—and me—after all!

One Quick Glance

But, as we raced on and on and the pursuing car seemed to be outdistanced a little at a time, I began wondering if the desperate driver of our car would not whirl us over some embankment rather than permit us to be taken.

When Versale suddenly released me, drew a gun and fired at the pursuing car, I had ventured one quick glance back of us. That told me that Martha Ainsley was in the car. And Versale's bullet, fired point-blank on the girl he had professed to love, told me that whatever else it failed to reach, it must shatter Martha's infatuation for him.

There was a sudden crash. What Versale's bullet had shattered was the windshield of the pursuing car.

A Sudden Leap

But it came on more desperately, than ever. Suddenly it fairly leaped ahead on the ribbon of road. Its front wheels caught up with our rear ones; they reached the hubs, and then suddenly the car, with Jimmy crouched on the inner running board, came abreast with ours.

Bob Wells tries in vain to detain Count Louis while Jimmy Barton perfects his surprise plan.

Versale leaned out, put his revolver to the front tire and shot. With the cannon explosion of an automobile blowout, the tire collapsed as the car swerved dangerously from the road.

All in one moment this occurred, and Jimmy leaped from their running boar to ours and caught Versale's right wrist. There was a quick struggle, and then Jimmy twisted the gun from Versele's inert wrist. The little missile fell in my lap.

In the most matter of course way in the world I picked it up, placed the barrel just back of the chauffeur's ear and remarked in a tone which did not fail to convey my earnestness: "Slow down!"

Two figures were running toward us from the crippled car which was stationed at the edge of the ditch just behind us. They grew from tiny points to full figures; and just as Jimmy took the gun from me and ordered Versale and "Butch" to climb down and line up before his weapon, Martha and Bob reached us. They both were panting and bright-eyed and each had the manner of having won a well-run race.

Martha managed to articulate a scornful question directed at Versale: "Where are my jewels, you little fortune hunter?" she cried.

She Finds Her Heart

At the time I thought it an amazing right about face. But later I came to know that Jimmy had told her a few facts about Nita, the maid, and that jealousy and scorn had given the one impulse needed to swing the girl back to her old love, her true love, Robert Wells.

Bob Wells had discovered the black walrus bag and now he opened it and held her jewel case out to Martha. She hesitated a moment and then she seized the pearls which the Ainsley brides always wore. A second later she was hiding her face on Bob's shoulder while Jimmy tied his prisoners' hands.

Then Mr. Barton turned smilingly to his friend, Robert Wells. "Send us a few policemen. We'll wait here," said he.

Jimmy looked after them and smiled in amusement.

"Well, their little journey through life is starting off with a rush. No problem of 'Matrimony and the Pay Envelope' is there, Miss Beatrice?"

"Well, it seems to me that the complications had more to do with repelling a foreign invasion," said I, looking toward the once dapper Versale, who stood hanging his head, with all his glory and place crumpled into nothing, and with his craven little body expressing very definitely the fact that Martha Ainsley's erstwhile suitor belonged where he was going—in a felon's cell.

So you see how very nicely Jimmy answered Robert Wells' question: "Is there any way an honest man can prevent his girl from falling in love with a fascinating foreigner?"

Wives I Might Have Been

As the Wife of an Army Officer Who Dazzled With His Manner

By JANE McLEAN.

I have always believed in moonlight and propinquity. That's why I nearly said "yes" when the captain asked me. Many a girl with as level a head as mine has been swept off her feet when she hasn't meant to say yes at all.

It happened last Winter when I was on a trip. Ever since I can remember I have dreamed about a military wedding. The idea of brass buttons and living at an army post somehow fascinated me, and when I was dropped right out of the skies at a real army post in the tropics I almost lost my head entirely.

I'm sure I don't know why it is. They say a girl never keeps her good looks long in the tropics. After she has lived there a while she loses her "pep," and her complexion gets that burnt look, and, in short, she isn't half as attractive. Of course the army officers are always on the lookout for girls, and when our party arrived at the post I had a pretty good time, I can tell you.

There was one night when I sat on the battery, and the waves were dashing up against the side, and the stars looked as though they were suspended from the sky on wires, and a little clump of palm trees away off toward the west looked as if their branches were getting all tangled up with the heavens. That was the night the captain asked me, and I nearly forgot all about losing my complexion and the fact that I wasn't in love, and I nearly said "Yes."

Yesterday I received a letter from May Dorian. She is taking that very same trip that I took last year. "I have met your captain, my dear," the letter ran, "and he is certainly just as fascinating as you said he was. Of course, you knew he was married. He must have been so hard hit after you left that he just had to have someone to marry. His wife is a dear little thing, very tiny and blonde, with big, appealing blue eyes. But she is not the type for him, she hasn't enough backbone, and I have seen enough of this army life to know that I don't want any of it."

"Now, if that isn't strange," I thought, looking up from the letter. "May vowed that she would come home engaged to an officer."

"The captain makes her very miserable," the letter went on, "although she tries to hide the fact, and his manners before strangers are positively devilish. But I have seen a few things for myself. Last night I met him walking on the terrace with a young widow who arrived on today's boat. And a moment later I came upon his wife talking feverishly with the colonel's adjutant, a nice boy who has been lately appointed. The poor little thing was trying to strain her eyes toward the terrace, and she was tearing her handkerchief to pieces. I'll tell you, you just have to keep busy every minute in order to hold your husband at a place like this. You'd never be able to let him see you on your off days; imagine what a strain that would be."

I smiled a little as I laid down the letter, and yet there was a sadness about it, too. Not that I don't believe that I could have managed the captain, but I'm glad I decided not to try.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CLING TO YOUR IDEALS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Referring to your article entitled "Asking advice and taking it." I venture to make a few remarks. I am eighteen and have not a single man friend for the reason I refuse to kiss every Tom, Dick and Harry. I have gone about with quite a few men and M was the same with all. I was particularly interested in the letter you quoted. One of his phrases is this: "I take my hat off to any girl who is really self-respecting." That was a very unfortunate thing to say, but did he, in his own soul, really mean what he said?

Possibly I am too skeptical, but I have long pondered this question. Why is it that men always pay attention to such girls as will allow them to kiss and make love to them, while the really self-respecting girls are turned down flat, and passed over in favor of the so-called game sport?

Would any man like his sister to be called a game sport?

ONE OF THE LONESOME ARMY.

THERE may be a good many women in the world who want to make light and facile love to every girl they meet, but there are also a great many who respect a girl for her own dignified self-respect. No eighteen-year-old girl is in a position to generalize about men because a few emotional boys have tried to make love to her and have lost interest in her when they found they couldn't. The thing for her to do is to be true to her own ideals and to try to retain her faith in human nature—which is a pretty decent thing after all. Try to appeal to the best in a man and not to be appealed to by any but the best type of men. Your problem will work itself out if you are patient and refuse to become cynical, skeptical, or reckless. You write a very good letter and evidently are capable of thinking and, reasoning in an interesting way. Rest assured that there are a good many men ready to like you for your mind if you reveal its charms to them.

New Fall Hats Straight from Paris

These models are reproduced by special arrangement with Harper's Bazar, the magazine for the woman who knows, published without interruption for over fifty years

Blue velvet fashions this very smart toque, trimmed with blue wings.

This black velure hat is effectively trimmed with a rose-colored plume.

The modistes of Paris are showing signs of activity, and there is already much talk about the first hat models for Autumn. The leading houses were ready early in August with their Winter hats for the American buyers, who arrived in advance of the regular season.

"While it is perhaps early for the millinery openings," the buyer for a leading importer said, "I have bought a number of hats for the Autumn and find a decided change in the styles, but there is as yet no one type of hat that one can predict as the popular model. The cloches, which are much liked in America, are not shown now at all. The cloche shapes, too, have entirely disappeared. In fact, most of the grouping designs have been replaced by those of directly opposite lines. One house, for example, is showing shapes with the large brims turned away from the face in every conceivable form. The beret hat, which is shown everywhere and which is already being so extensively worn, is sure to endure for early Autumn. In all the houses that I have seen so far there is a marked tendency toward high effects.

"The warm August days called forth surprising quantities of velvet hats. At the Ambassadeurs, at the tea hour, straw suddenly disappeared. One saw velvet everywhere. A Louis XVI. hat of dark blue velvet, worn the other afternoon at this famous restaurant, attracted much attention. The draped crown, which was much higher in the back than in front, melted into a brim of corn lace that fell over the eyes in a fashin decidedly becoming and alluring.

"Many mourning hats are large simple toques having an edging of tulle that falls below the eyes. The long crepe veil is arranged well toward the back in such a way that the fullness spreads out at each side."

Dreams That Do Not Come True

The Old Maid and the Married Woman Have Different Viewpoints

By DOROTHY DIX

As It Seems to Be

The old maid speaks:

"Ah, how I envy married women. What a wonderful thing it must be to have the love and protection of a husband, to have some strong arm to stand between you and the world, some buffer between you and the hardships of existence.

"How sweet it must be to have a husband to love and cherish you, to feel that you are the one woman in the world to him, and that as the years go by his affection grows tenderer and more chivalrous, and to know that in his eyes, at least, you will never grow old and homely, but always be the fair young bride he married.

"It must be wonderful to watch of an evening for the coming of the step of the master of the house, and to think of the long evenings of perfect companionship that you will spend with the man who is literally your other half, talking over together all the little happenings of the day, secure in a perfect companionship and understanding.

"No wonder the organ peals out 'The Voice That Breathes O'er Eden' at weddings. Marriage is Paradise regained for a woman.

"Of course, I'm not so badly off as things go for old maids. I have an ample income for all my needs, and plenty of interests to keep me alert and alive, and hosts of good friends, and affectionate relatives, but I am alone. I have no man to stand between me and the world. I must fend for myself and look out for my own interests.

"I've got no husband to tell me I'm still young and beautiful when I'm fat and forty; no footsteps to listen for of an evening; no loving lips to praise all that I do or leave undone.

"That's why I envy every married woman who breaks up a bridge game or rushes home from a tea or the matinee to see about dinner for her husband. The married life is the only life for woman."

As It Really Is

The married woman speaks:

"I wonder what makes any woman fool enough to get married!

"It's slavery. That's what it is. Nothing but slavery, that an idiot of a young girl gives herself into without knowing what she's doing. I'll wager that if marriage licenses had return coupons attached to them that there isn't one bride in a hundred that would not be back in her girlhood inside of three months.

"They talk about a husband protecting his wife. Huh! There's one person he doesn't protect you from, and that's himself. So far as I can see, the chief thing a man gets married for is to get somebody that he can vent all of his ill temper and grouchiness on.

"I know my husband talks to me in a way that he would never dream of speaking to any other human being on earth, and especially as he'd never speak to anything else that were his slave. He's polite and affable and gracious to men he has to do business with and chivalrous to women in society, but one of the unwritten laws of matrimony is that you don't have to show any good manners toward a mere wife.

"Companionship — that's what every girl really marries for. Not one husband in a hundred ever holds a real conversation with his wife. He goes to the club of an evening, or else drowses over the paper and grunts when he is spoken to. If you'd substitute a stone dummy for the average husband his wife would never find out the difference.

"Perhaps there are husbands that pay their wives compliments, and still take an interest in holding their hand after the first year of matrimony.

"Marriage is no picnic for a woman. How I envy the old maids who have their own pocketbooks, and their own latch keys, and nobody who has a legal right to tell them of their faults and criticize their appearance."

Not Particular

"Scientists are now generally agreed that drunkenness is a disease, and that the man who drinks should be treated by a physician."

"Oh, well, most men who drink don't care who treats them."

In Our Wonderful World

Do you know why we dip a razor in hot water before we begin shaving? and do you know why you are ignorant men say a razor is "tired"? Well, this is all due to the fact that the razor is a saw, not a knife, and it works like a saw, not like a knife. Examined under a microscope, its edge, that looks so smooth to the naked eye, is seen to have innumerable and fine saw-teeth. When these teeth get clogged with dirt all the honing and stropping in the world will do no good—the razor is dull and nothing will sharpen it.

Then is the time the ignorant say it is "tired" and stop using it, but the wise know it is only clogged. The wise, though, don't suffer their razors to get clogged. They dip them in hot water before they use them, and thus the teeth of these clean. It is because a razor is new that lather is used on the beard. The lather doesn't soften the beard, as so many people think; it stiffens it, so that it will present a firm and resisting surface to the razor.

Extermination of the prairie dog which is in no wise like a dog, despite the name—has been ordered by the Texas Legislature, which has passed a law giving landowners two years in which to rid their property of the pests, of which there are "countless millions." In the territory around Tahoka, in what is commonly known as the "south plains" country of Western Texas, prairie dogs have long been a source of heavy losses to ranchmen and farmers. They feed upon the tender roots of grass and the vegetation of the fields and gardens. They live in vast cities that cover areas of 50,000 to 1,000,000 acres in a solid body.

No, this isn't a mistake. It doesn't mean he cries when he takes medicine. Science has discovered that crying is often the best medicine for a baby, and tells why, in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Intelligent Dog.

Tommy Howard is no better and no worse than the majority of men of his age; but his maiden aunt, who keeps him in supplies at college and to whom he looks to leave him something worth while, takes it for granted that he is the embodiment of all the virtues.

She went to see him recently, and the dutiful Tommy took her and his dog for a walk through the city. Tommy hadn't given a thought to the intelligence of the canine creature, but, as the event proved, the dog nearly upset the whole business. For he trotted ahead, stopped at the door of a saloon, and looked around as if expecting his master to follow.

"Thomas," said his aunt, "what does this mean?"

"Mean, aunty?" replied Tommy. "Er—dog's a wonderfully intelligent beast, you see. Saw the sign of that horrid place, thinks it's a dairy, and, liking milk, wants me to buy him some."

Explanation accepted. But if was a close touch.

LATEST NEWS of STOCK MARKETS

Featured by the trading in the stock of United States Steel common, the volume of business on the New York Stock Exchange today surpassed that of any two-hour session in recent years, the total turnover being 1,181,700 shares.

Steel opened with a sale of 15,000 shares at 111¾ to 115, smashing yesterday's high record of 114⅝. Trading in the stock became frantic, the big public demand causing the price to go higher and higher until it touched 117½.

Most of the huge volume of business was confined to a few stocks. Besides Steel, new high records were: Anaconda 99, Inspiration 65⅝, Maxwell Motor 97, Central Leather 127¼ and Utah Copper 96½.

Next to Steel, supports attracted the most attention, their strength and activity being based on the foreign sale of 115,000,000 pounds of copper, the largest transaction of its kind in history.

The Boston market closed irregularly, with coppers the big features. Isle Royale advanced 3 points to a new high for the year, while Copper Range was up ¼. Losses included Atlantic Gulf 1, U. S. Smelting ¼ and North Butte ½.

"My Wi-i-i-i-ife Won't Let Me"

Perhaps she's right; and then again, perhaps she isn't. The question of how much liberty a wife should allow her husband, raised by a recent New York tragedy, is discussed in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

A Warm Welcome Awaits the Bay State Soldiers When They Return

THE homecoming of soldiers is either the gladdest or the most sorrowful occasion for the whole community. To the relatives of the returning soldiers, of course, it is always an event for private rejoicing, whether they come home as conquerors or conquered. But to the community it is a gala event if they return as conquerors either of a human enemy or of some hard task.

The return of the Massachusetts troops from the Mexican border will bring gladness to the hearts of every friend and relative. It will also be an occasion for celebrating, because they will come as conquerors of a hard task. It was a hard task to give up their business, part from their families and the comforts of peace for the rigors and privations of a military life, in an unaccustomed climate, where the sun swelters and there is no shade and no moisture and where the unaccustomed physical labor puts a great burden upon their power and strength.

It was a great task to do all this, while the rest of us remained at home with all its comforts, safety and ease, and to do it for us as much as for themselves. It is true that these soldiers will not come back as conquerors in the ordinary sense that they have met a public enemy on a battlefield and conquered him, shedding blood to do it, but they did not know when they took up this task that battle might not be at the end of it. The worst part of fighting is anticipating.

Massachusetts is exceptionally proud of her own troops. They have been among the best in the nation. We will welcome them home with great rejoicing and we are glad that they are coming back with full ranks and in good health, with a valuable experience, which will probably count much for each of them and which will certainly count a great deal for us all during their military age. We will welcome them home because they have made great personal sacrifices for the country and for the State, sacrifices which we have not ourselves made and yet which were made for our benefit. In the best sense of the word they will come back conquerors, and as such we salute them.

Mr. Fitzgerald Advocates Public Distribution of Milk

EX-MAYOR FITZGERALD made a very significant speech Thursday night at the Barre fair. He took up the question of government ownership, which Senator Lodge delights to denounce along with everything else that is progressive and that interferes with the inordinate profits of "Big Business" in this country.

The United States government, wearying of the extortion of the Armor Plate Trust, which was charging our government far more than it cost foreign governments for armor plate and other munitions for national defence, decided to build its own factory and manufacture its own armor plate and its own powder in competition with the private plants.

To this Mr. Lodge is opposed as a tendency toward public ownership, as he is also opposed to the rural credit act, which gives the farmers of the nation the banking facilities that "Big Business" has, and the federal reserve act, which has wrested from Wall Street its power to create panics and destroy investors, ruin business and prostrate the country whenever a little Wall Street clique wants to "bear" the market or to "bull" it or to destroy an enemy like Morse.

We quote part of Mr. Fitzgerald's reply. It is well worth considering, because it comes from a man who has had great experience in public affairs as the chief executive of the largest city in New England and who has served in both the State and the national government:

"Senator Lodge in his speech the other day condemned the tendency of the people of the United States toward government ownership, and cited the case of the building of the armor plant by the government. I thoroughly believe in this proposition, and I think that the majority of the people of the country, when they know the facts, will indorse the action of Congress. I do not believe Senator Lodge voices the opinion of the Progressive and progressive Republicans of the country on this proposition. I not only favor government ownership of armor plants, but I would go further and extend the help of the government to the farming industry.

"The raising of milk is the most important business of humanity, for two reasons; first, no farming can be successful without the raising of an adequate supply of milk, and unless the farmer is remunerated for his milk he must eventually go into bankruptcy; and, second, this milk is the food of thousands of infants, particularly in the large cities of the world. Statistics obtained by Dr. Davis, the eminent statistician of the Boston Board of Health, show that the bottle-fed infant over two weeks old is six times as likely to die as the breast-fed infant.

"What investment, therefore, could the United States engage in to better advantage than sustaining the milk industry of the nation?

"In the early days of the Republic railroads were given millions of dollars and grants of millions of acres of land to [illegible] their building; millions of dollars have been appropriated by the United States Treasury to help shipping to various points of the world; protective laws which have helped private interests to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars have been passed since the beginning of our government; why not subsidize its farmers who are the life blood of the nation? I would like to ask Mr. Lodge what he thinks about this proposition."

Mr. Fitzgerald further advocates the gathering of milk from the farmers and the distribution by the State so that no consideration of profit may enter into the matter of conveying to the children of the Commonwealth this vital necessary of life; so that no selfish interest may tempt anyone to neglect any precaution whatever to keep the milk pure and wholesome, or to keep its price within reach of the poor.

The AMERICAN agrees with Mr. Fitzgerald. We must encourage agriculture in New England. We must stimulate the production of milk, and we must make sure that every child has enough of it, and that it is as pure as nature made it. Reckoned in dollars and cents merely, based on the slave value of a human being simply, the preservation of children, just as machines to labor and to produce wealth like a horse or an ox, is worth more to the community than any possible cost of stimulating the production of milk and preserving its purity by government aid to the farmer and government distribution of milk.

Let Mr. Fitzgerald continue the agitation of this question. We need just one other step to complete the good work. We need public ownership of the means of transporting the milk, the railroads, as they have public ownership of those public service companies in every great country in the world today except the United States.

Beads

By Jane McLean

THE hours are like a string of colored beads
Strung on a golden chain.
First come the small ones like a row of deeds
That speak not loss nor gain.

Then comes an amber bead that speaks a day
Of languorous golden hours
When Time, in lingering, dreams itself away
Among the poppy flowers.

Then comes a bead of jade that brings a breath
Caught from its liquid heart
Of warring passions, pain and grief and death,
A sad day set apart.

Then comes a red bead like a drop of fire,
A glorious pagan thing,
When Love and Youth, forgetful of earth's mire,
Lift up their hearts and sing.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Destroyer!

EZEKIEL JONES was bright in school; in business he was keen;
At twenty-five he owned the bank he'd swept at seventeen.
At thirty he owned half the town, and everybody said
That all the wisdom in the world was stowed up in his head.
There seemed to be no pelf nor place Ezekiel couldn't get—
And then he wrote a letter to a little girl he'd met.

THEY may be shrewd as Solomon,
As smart as old John D.,
The things they know strung in a row
May stretch from sea to sea.
The brilliancy with which they think
Us lowbrows may appal,
But when they fool with pen and ink,
The wisest of 'em fall.

BERIAH BROWN was down on booze, he never touched a card;
Assorted tempters sought in vain to catch him off his guard.
He didn't think a baseball game could be upon the level,
He called the one-step and the trot inventions of the devil.
A super-model man he was, detesting all things shady—
And then he wrote a letter to a red-haired widow lady.

IN unpolluted purity
Their systems may be bathed,
The wicked ways of these base days
May leave their hearts unscathed.
They may despise the demon drink,
And frown upon the dance,
But when they toy with pen and ink,
They haven't got a chance!

In-Shoots

It is difficult to indulge in the fancy vest habit without attracting the attention of the alienists.

It would be zoologically unconventional for a jackass to have horse sense.

Lots of six-cylinder fellows have failed on account of defects in the gasoline tanks.

When we look some of the grooms over we do not wonder that their visiting are spoken of as "blushing brides."

A fat bankroll will not purchase ancestors for a man, but it will procure something just as good for general use.

The man who leads the simple life generally has a good appetite in the morning.

Some men are like roosters; they make a lot of noise when there is nothing to crow about.

When we see a girl wearing a mannish hat it always seems as though she was thinking that way.

But Here Is More Than Mackerel and Vinegar

For the AMERICAN Tomorrow Ranges Far—Unitarians, Keep Your Eyes on Billy Sunday—The Di Cola Tragedy—Philosophy and a Pickle—Fullerton, Series & Co.—The "Candle-light Bride."

Mark Twain told, in "Roughing It," as one recalls, that a traveler at a frontier hotel objected because the table displayed only mackerel.

"I don't like mackerel," he complained.

The landlord retorted: "Well, help yourself to the vinegar."

A choice, truly, but limited. And that is where the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow differentiates from that story. For the reader tomorrow will not only have a wide range of choice, but a great number of choices along that range.

For range, for instance, consider the stories of the "Candle-light Bride" and the Charlestown boy hero. Joy and sorrow.

A beautiful story is the one which Jean Morgan of the AMERICAN staff has written about the Bay State girl, the original of the painting "Candle-light." The romance that grew from the painting is ideal. The young man did not love HER at first sight. He did not wait for that. He loved her picture at first sight. And now they are so happy and she tells about it and—it's too pretty to give it all away now.

But the poet wrote that "Women must weep." There is a Charlestown mother. Her boy went to the World War. He died by the bank of the blood-reddened Somme, trying to save a comrade's life. His Top-Sergeant wrote to the mother a letter of information and consolation. And in the writing that Top-Sergeant burst out toward the close: "He was the whitest and the straightest kid I ever knew."

Read tomorrow about that Charlestown lad, the battle hero, and about his mother. This is no clever invention of the paid fiction writer. It is a bit of real life and will make you think.

SPLASH! SPLASH! Three score girls dive into the Charles River basin this afternoon from the Metropolitan Park Commission's float and swim for the girl championship of New England.

It's the AMERICAN'S twelfth annual race for girls. It is a water classic. Thousands and thousands of persons will see it. Tomorrow the AMERICAN will tell about the race and the winner and how she won and who was there, with pictures of the race, from start to finish.

New firm starts its Fall business again tomorrow. Well known firm, too. It might be called: "Fullerton, Series & Co."

Which is to say that Hugh Fullerton, the celebrated baseball writer, will begin a run of articles in the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow, analyzing and comparing the players of the leading teams in each League, preparatory to the World's Series.

They say: "Three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves." But now we have three generations from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the famous poet, to a hod-carrier.

Yet our hod-carrier is also a philosopher, a pacifist. He is Edmund T. Dana, Longfellow's famous grandson. He is now lugging mortar up a ladder in the Canadian woods. He ate pickles and sandwiches 'neath a tree and expounded some hod-carrying and war philosophy to a reporter.

It is a vigorous, if pacific, philosophy that Dana has. He makes a baseball comparison that is as pat as can be. This baseball point used by Dana to drive home a point is only one of a number of philosophical "punches" which he delivers.

Another tragedy in the "richest town." The suicide of Dr. Celia P. Adams, the Coolidge Corner osteopath, followed by the shooting of Dr. Wilfred E. Harris of Copley Square, shocked the comfortable community out at the farther end of the Boylston street subway.

But now another and even more jarring tragedy—an assassination, a night murder, an ambush, with hint of blackmail and the rattling of a particularly spectacular family skeleton.

In this slaying of Gaspare Di Cola of Boston and Brookline the metropolitan district has stumbled upon a series of bizarre events. The Sunday AMERICAN will have the latest details in this startling crime.

To shift to another and happier phase, there is an unusually pretty story, a new story, about Elsa Tudor's marriage, a bridal in lonely woods at night. Thus the war-widowed Countess de Pierrefeu of Boston married a Boston architect.

Doctor Harvey W. Wiley, the indefatigable investigator, has discovered another new thing about food. This time it is—or they are—"vitamins." Dr. Wiley's article tomorrow is interesting, instructive and important.

It looks a bit squally, after all, between the Reverend Billy Sunday and the Unitarians. Recently it was said that, when Billy opened up the "trail" in Boston he would not say such hard things about Unitarians as he has said in other places. You see, Boston is the very stronghold of Unitarianism and, to say unkind words about them here would be like calling a man names at his own table.

So, when Billy came here he was going to sort of glide over the Unitarians quiet-like and easy, just as one refrains from mentioning an erring brother or some other family sorrow. That was the idea.

But it seems that this idea was a little premature. Apparently Billy Sunday didn't have it, whoever else did. What he IS going to DO and SAY—if he feels like it in Boston—is lively reading.

A full expose of the methods of "The Arson Trust," with a list of its peculiar "argot" or incendiary language of its own, form an interesting study in up-to-date wholesale crime.

"The Wayward Walcotts" shows the departure of a fine old New England family from its time-honored given names and its recent return thereto. It might be styled "Back to Roger and Oliver."

Winsor McKay, the cartoonist of nation-wide fame, is filling a week's engagement at a local theatre. In the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will appear a wonderful McKay cartoon, based upon the terrible epidemic of infantile paralysis which has swept over this State.

Boston sets the style in women's shoes. A big feature tomorrow will show the latest Fall and Winter designs for women's footwear.

Special features in the magazine section of the Sunday paper will include: "American Stage Beauties," by Artist Kirchner; "How Pullman Cars Get Their Queer Names and Why," "Has the North Pole Ever Been Really Discovered?" "Evidence That Venus Is Inhabited," "How a Cold Storage Egg Started the Servant Girls' Union," Jack London's intimate description of Hawaiian life, and Lady Duff-Gordon's fashion page and pictures.

Husbands—There's also a full-page feature on "How Much Liberty Ought a Wife Give Her Husband."
